

Sales Bedrock

Here’s what we’re going to cover

- The founding principle of sales
- Common misconceptions & myth busting
- Your moral obligation in sales
- How we structure our sales calls
- The 1 call rule
- Important things to remember

I
A

The Founding Principle Of Sales

Discovering this principle was without a doubt the #1 thing that contributed to my sales success

I
A

It explains why people buy things, not just paid traffic retainers, but everything

I
A

What is the founding principle of sales, and why do people buy?

Pain

I
A

Let me explain

The brain operates from 1 mode of motivation - pain avoidance

I
A

Therefore, most of the decisions we make as humans are made to avoid pain

I
A

Understand: if someone is making a decision to buy from you, it's because they think your product can their pain

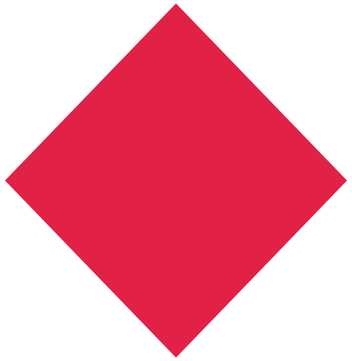

I
A

They are buying their way out of a painful situation

People don’t buy their way into products, they but they way out of painful situations

I
A

Let’s explore how this works and understand the science of sales

Where someone is currently at

I
A

Where someone is currently at

Your message (Stimulus)

I
A

Awareness of a problem or opportunity (Agitation)

I
A

Awareness that things could be better & that they could be where they want to be

I
A

This blue square represents an awareness that they could improve, and that things could be better. At present, they don't really know what or how, but this awareness quickly transforms into agitation and creates pain.

Awareness that things could be better & that they could be where they want to be

I
A

YOU & THE CALL

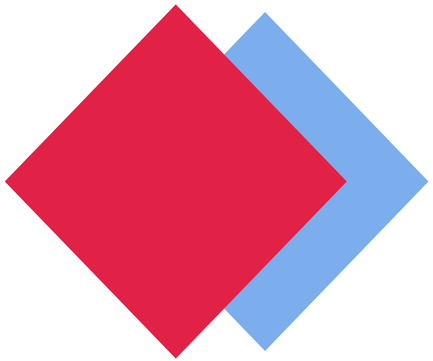

Agitation/Awareness

I
A

Let’s explore the purpose of the call

I
A

BEFORE THE CALL

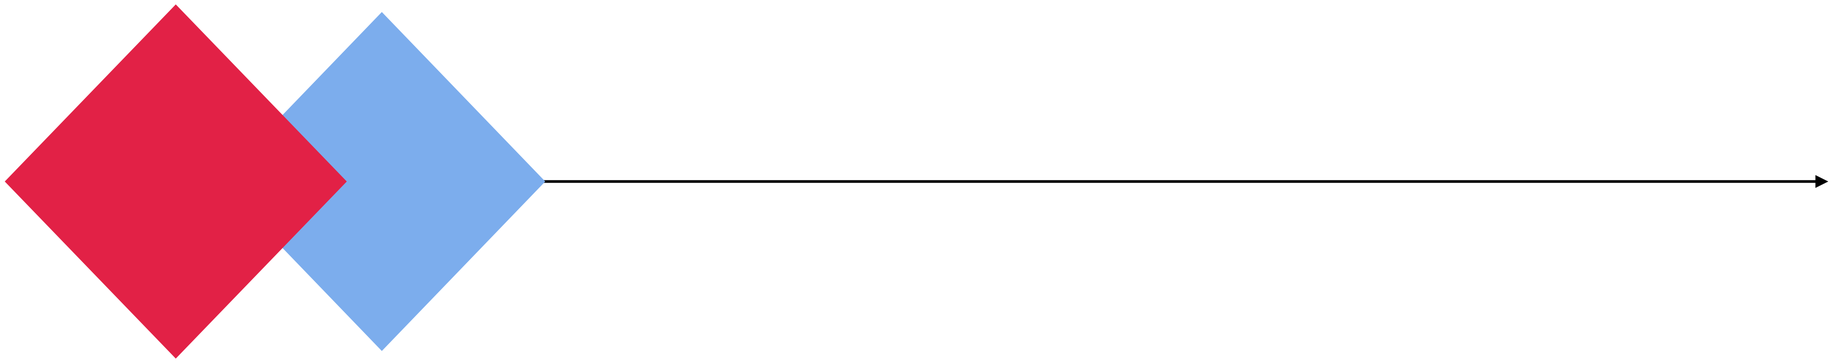

Agitation/Awareness

YOU & THE CALL

I
A

DURING THE CALL

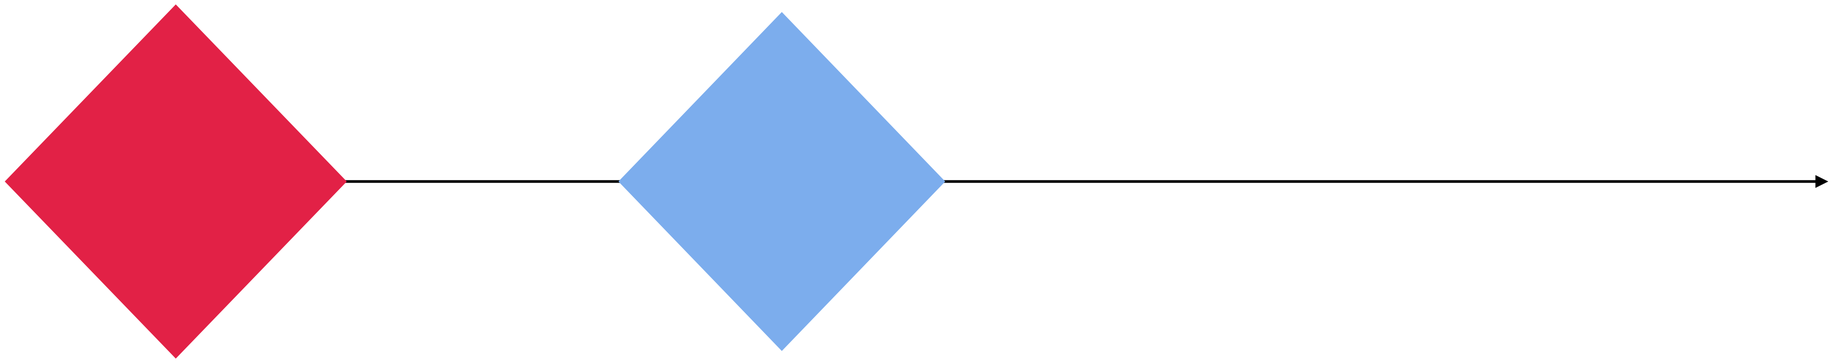

Agitation/Awareness

YOU & THE CALL

I
A

DURING THE CALL

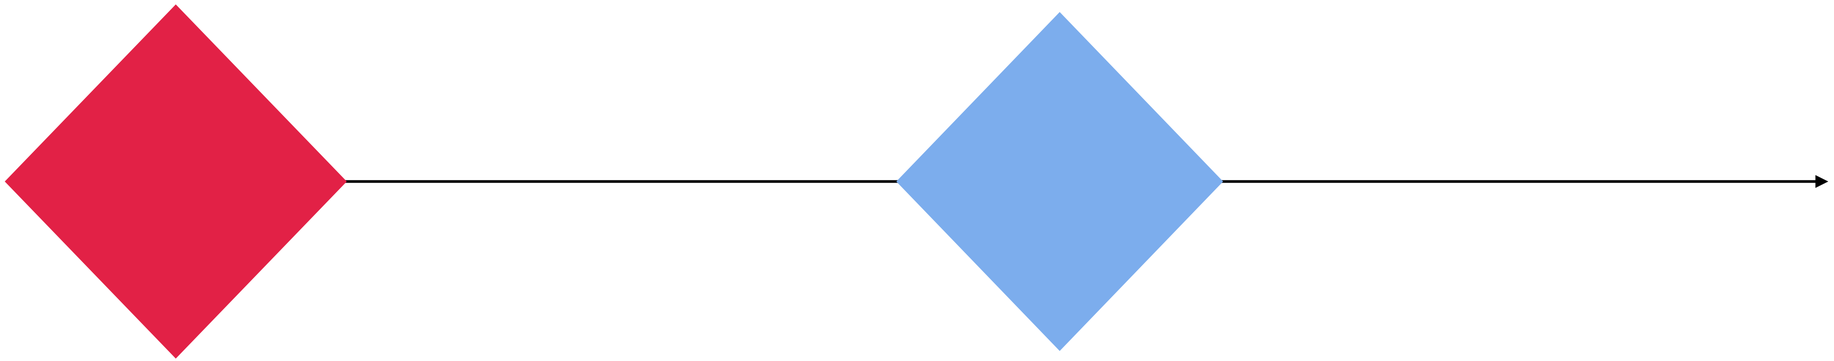

Defining where they’re at

YOU & THE CALL

I
A

DURING THE CALL

Separating where they're at from where they want to be

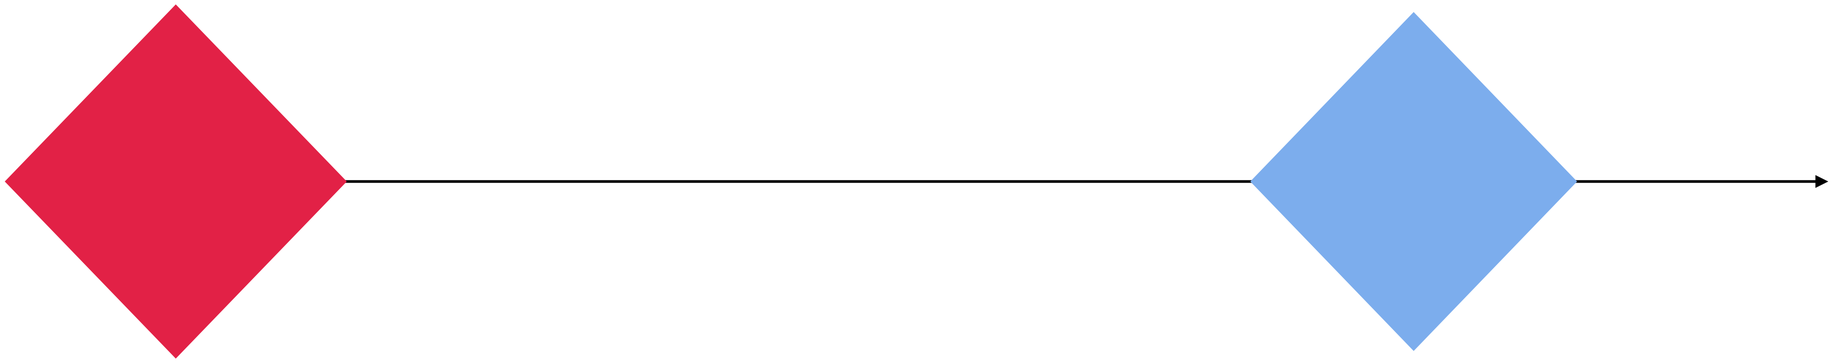

Defining where they're at

YOU & THE CALL

I
A

DURING THE CALL

Separating where they're at from where they want to be

Clear understanding of where they're at

YOU & THE CALL

I
A

DURING THE CALL

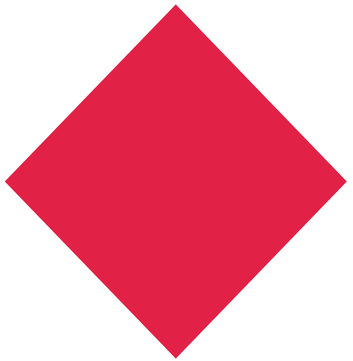

Clear understanding
of where they're at

Clear understanding of where they want to be

YOU & THE CALL

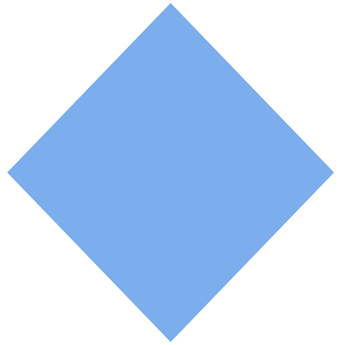

I
A

NOW WE HAVE TWO CLEARLY DEFINED
SITUATIONS - THEIR CURRENT ONE,
AND THEIR DESIRED ONE.

Where they are

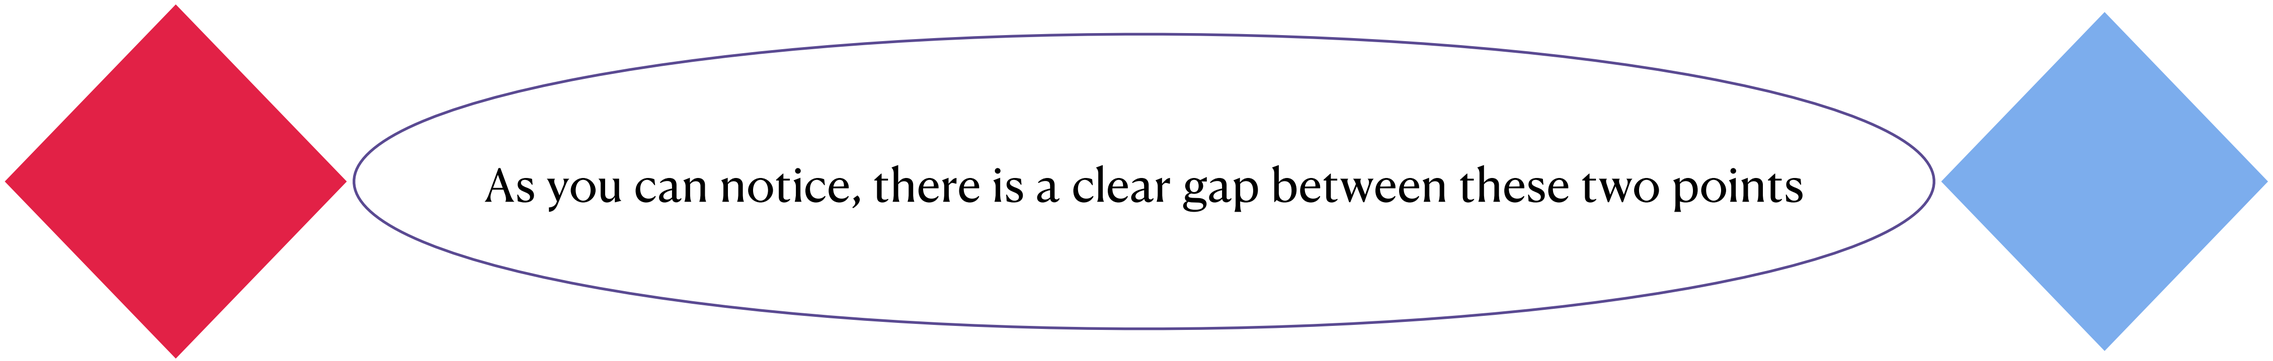

Clear Metric

Where they want to be

Clear Metric & Timeline

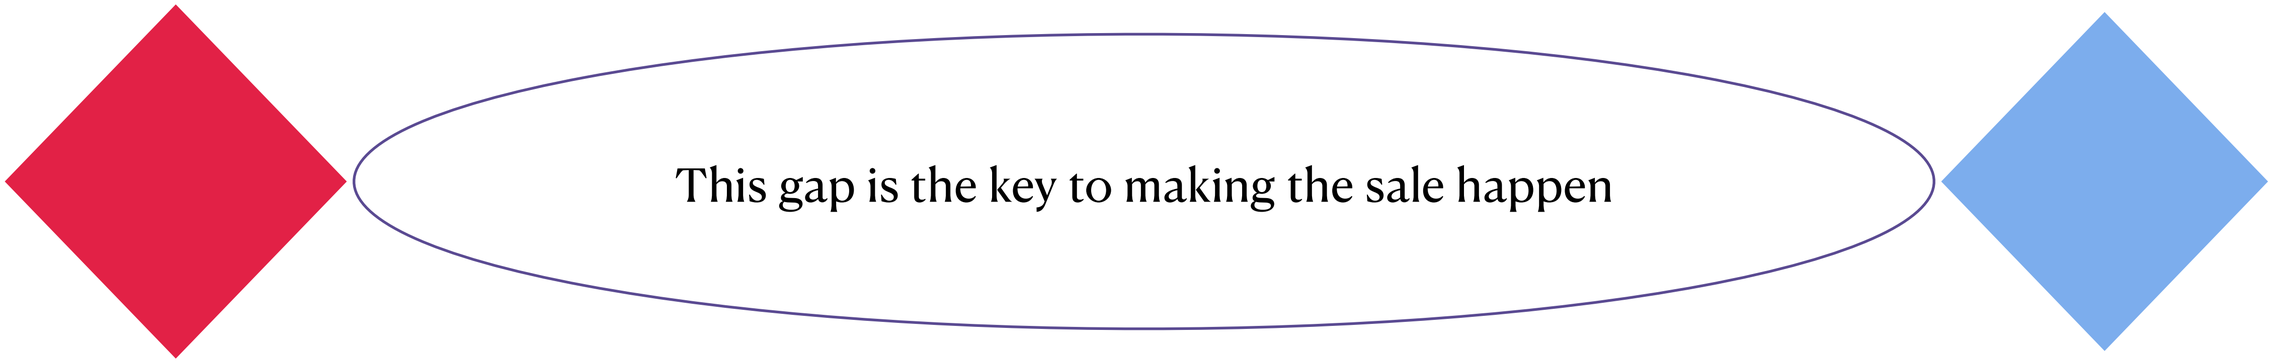

I
A

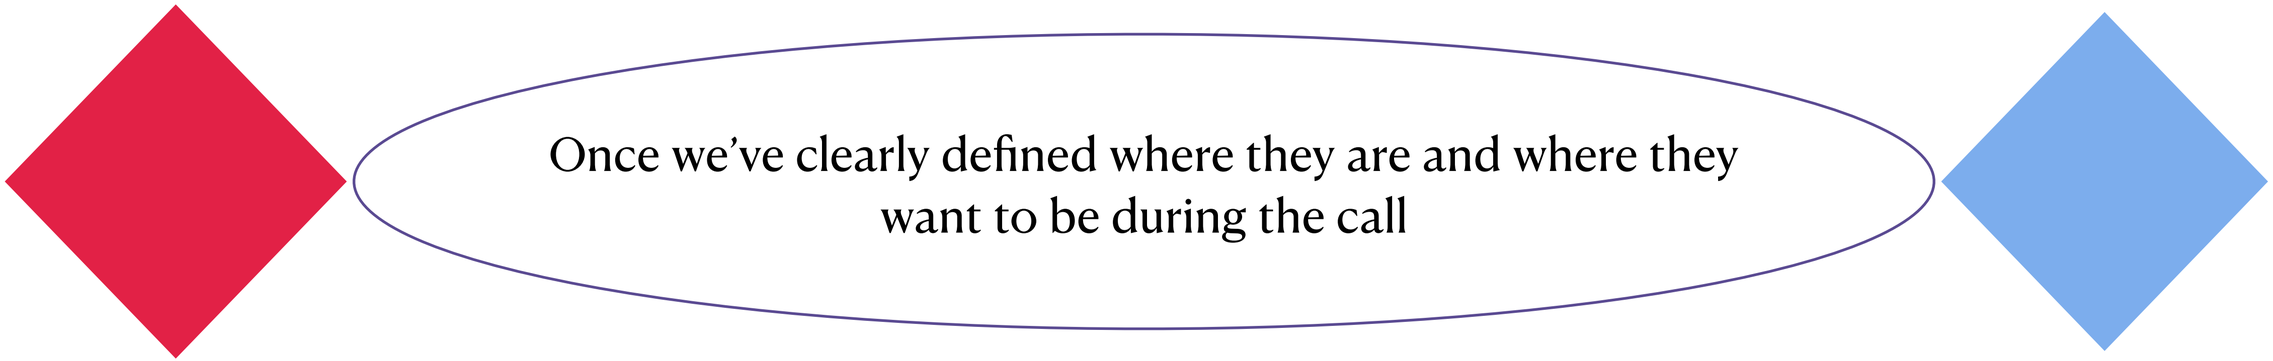

Where they are

Where they want to be

I
A

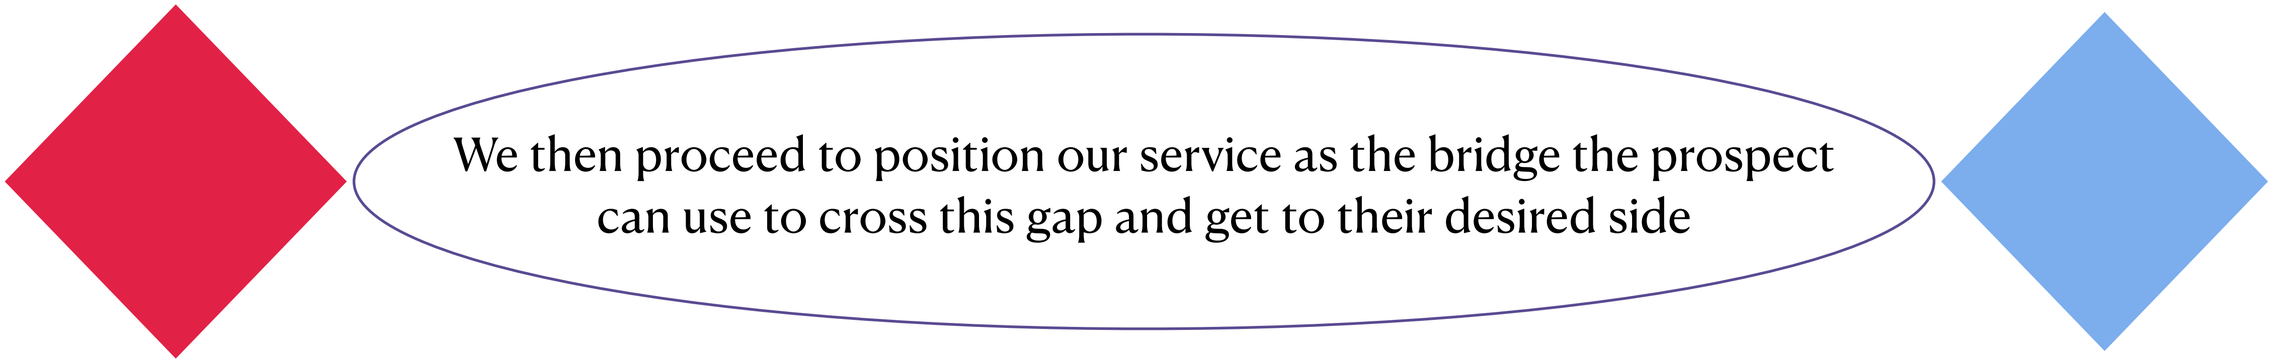

This gap is the key to making the sale happen
Where they are
Where they want to be

I
A

YOU & THE CALL

I
A

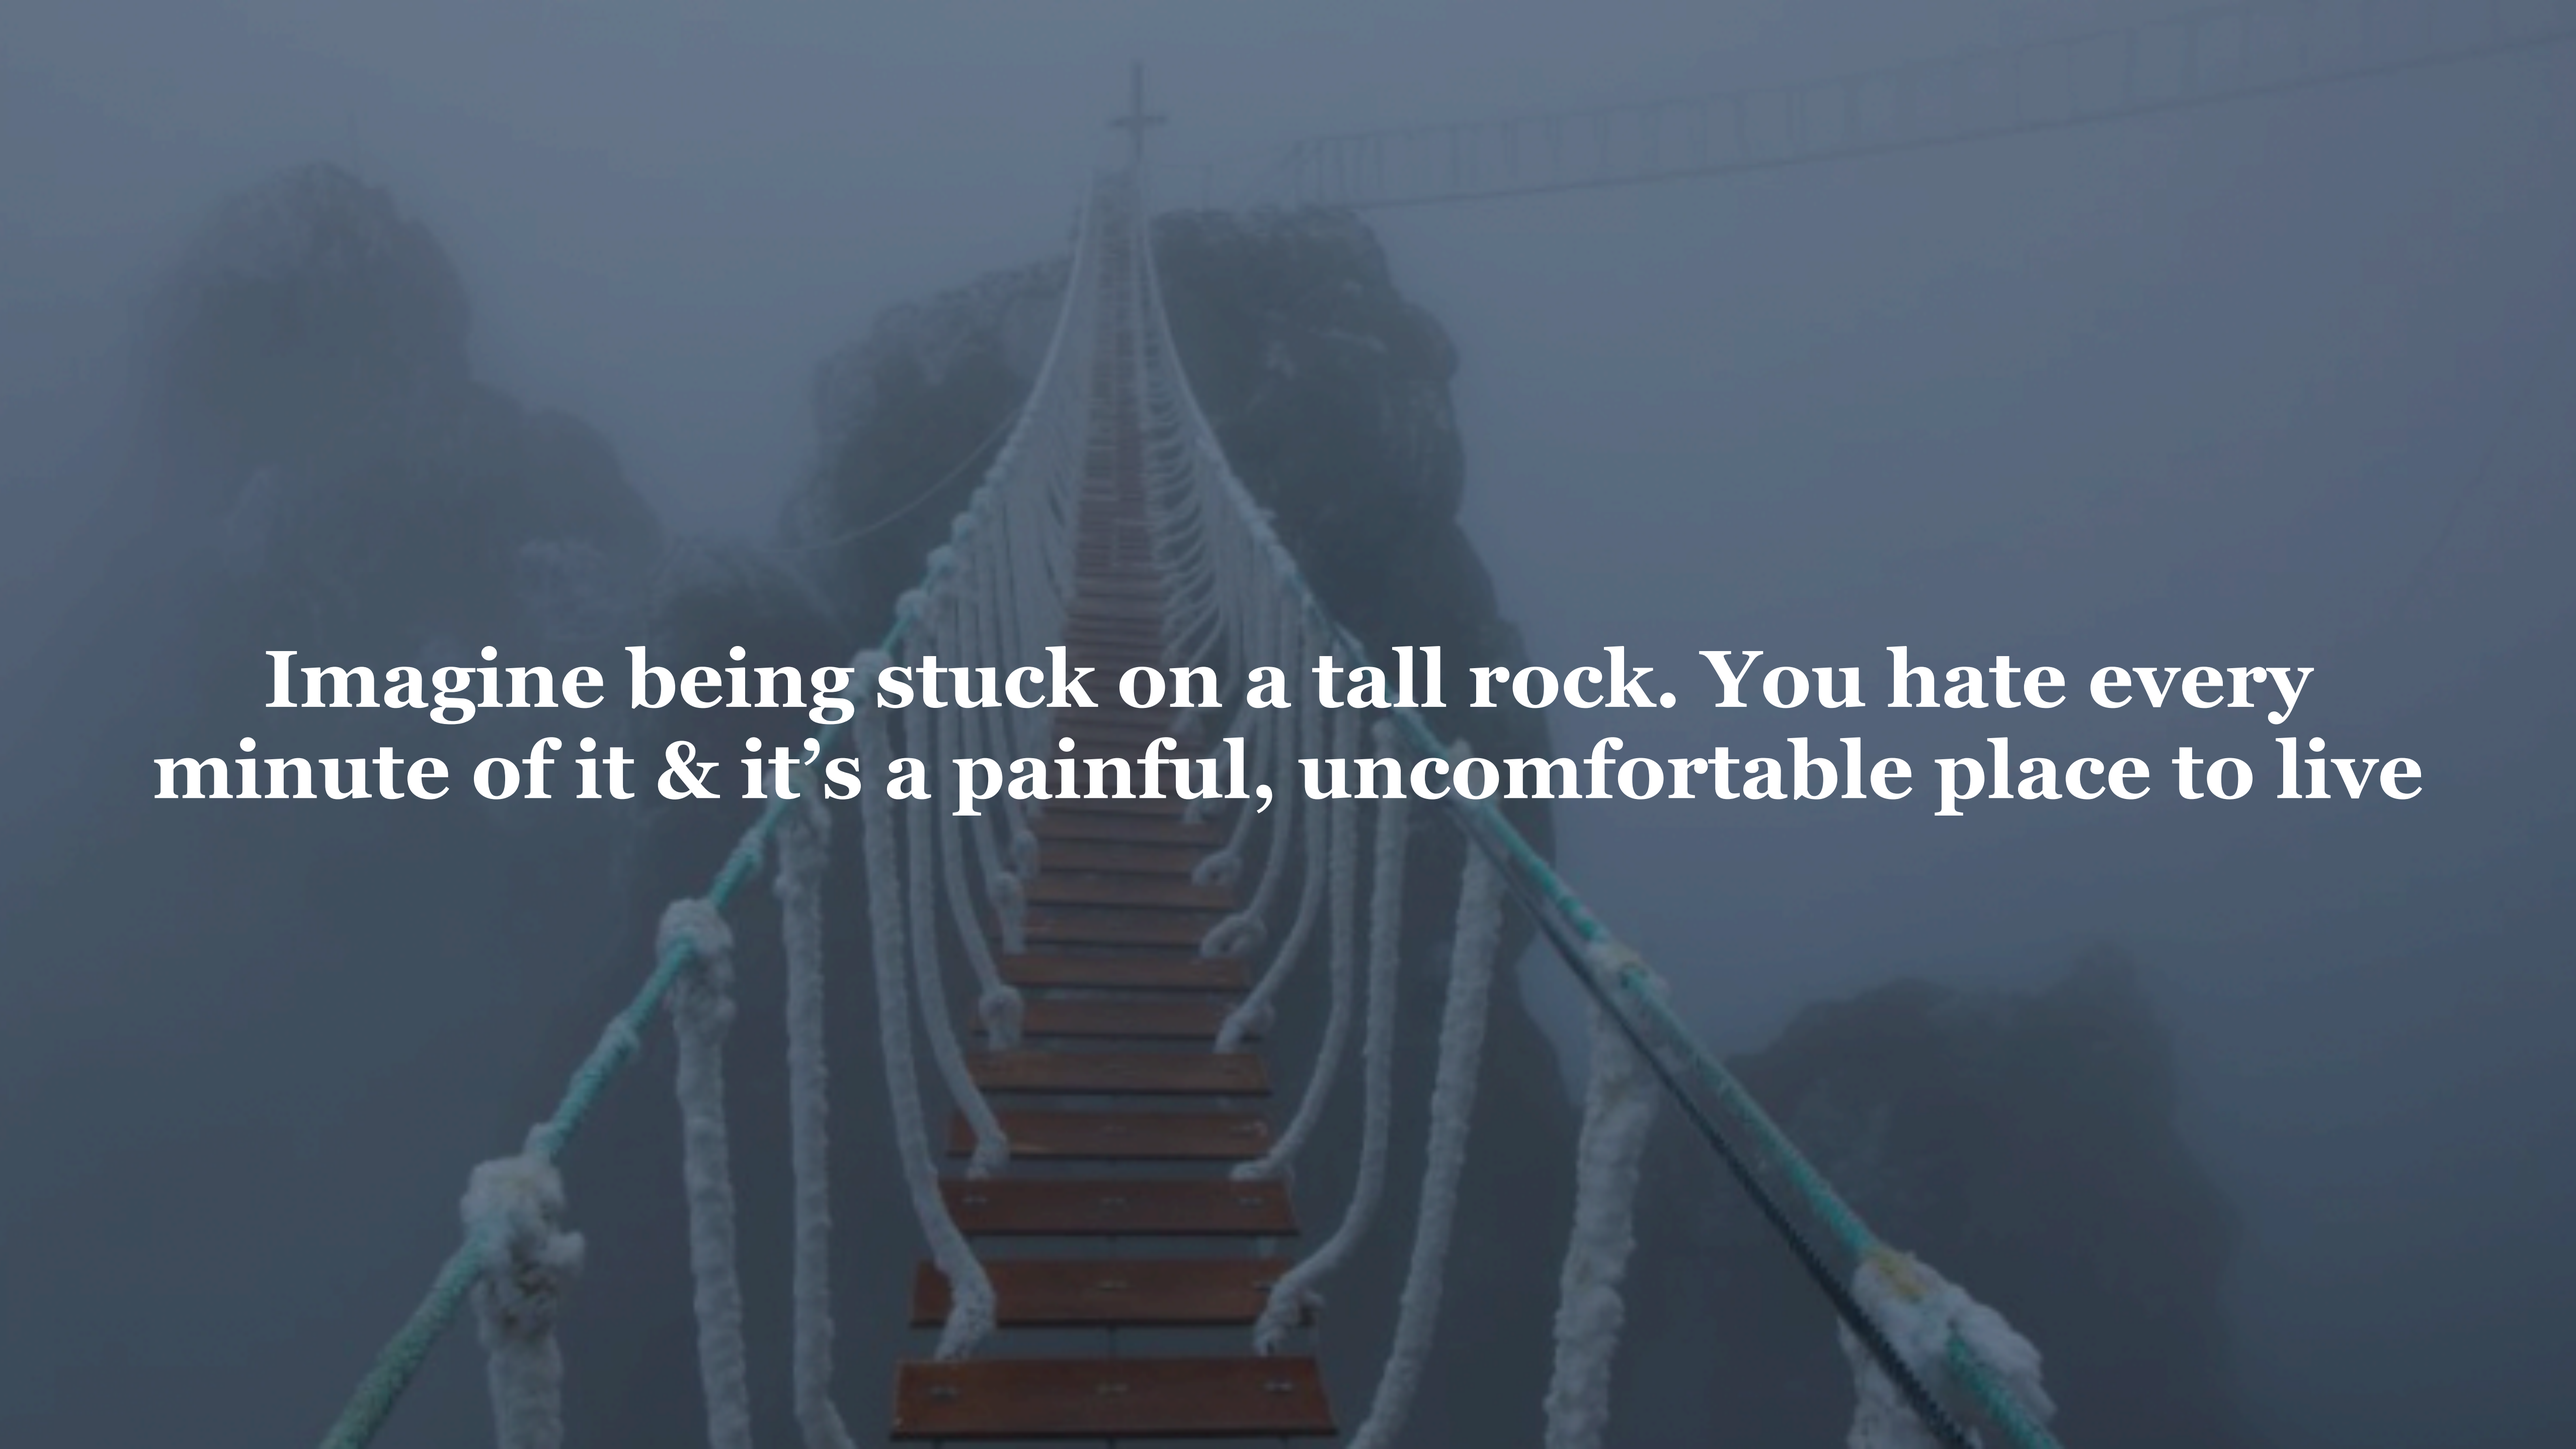

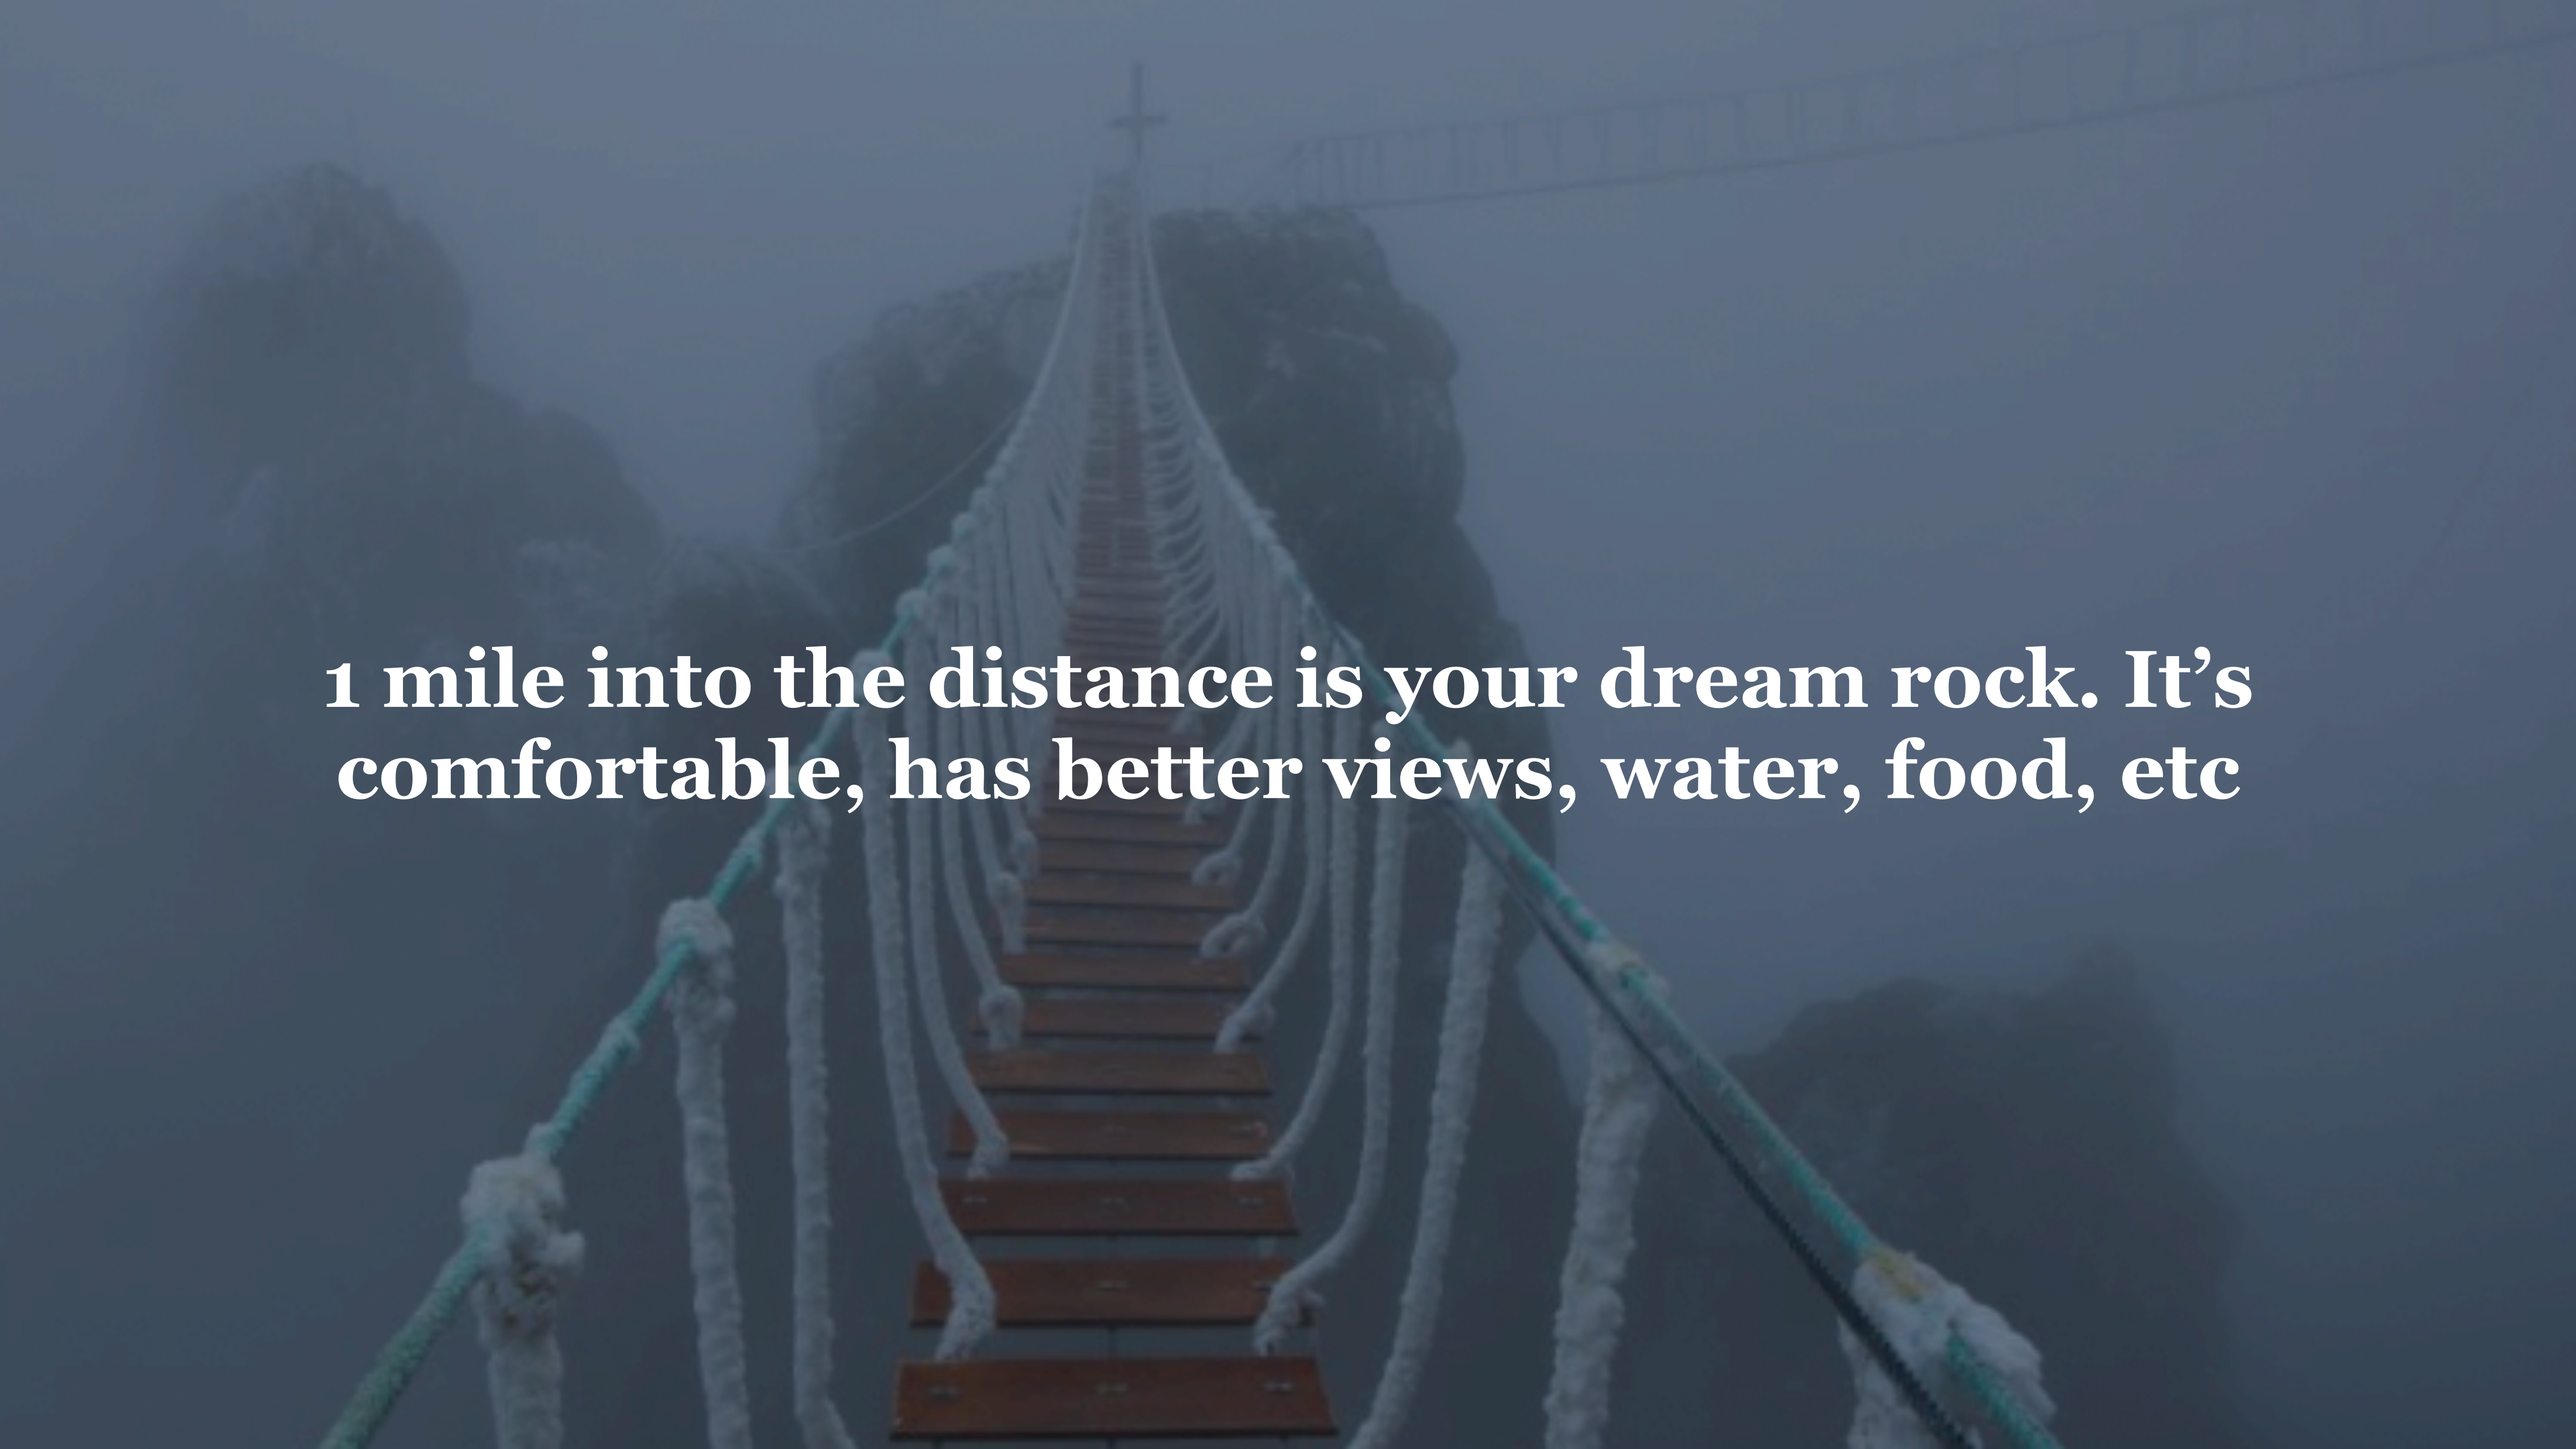

Where they are

Where they want to be

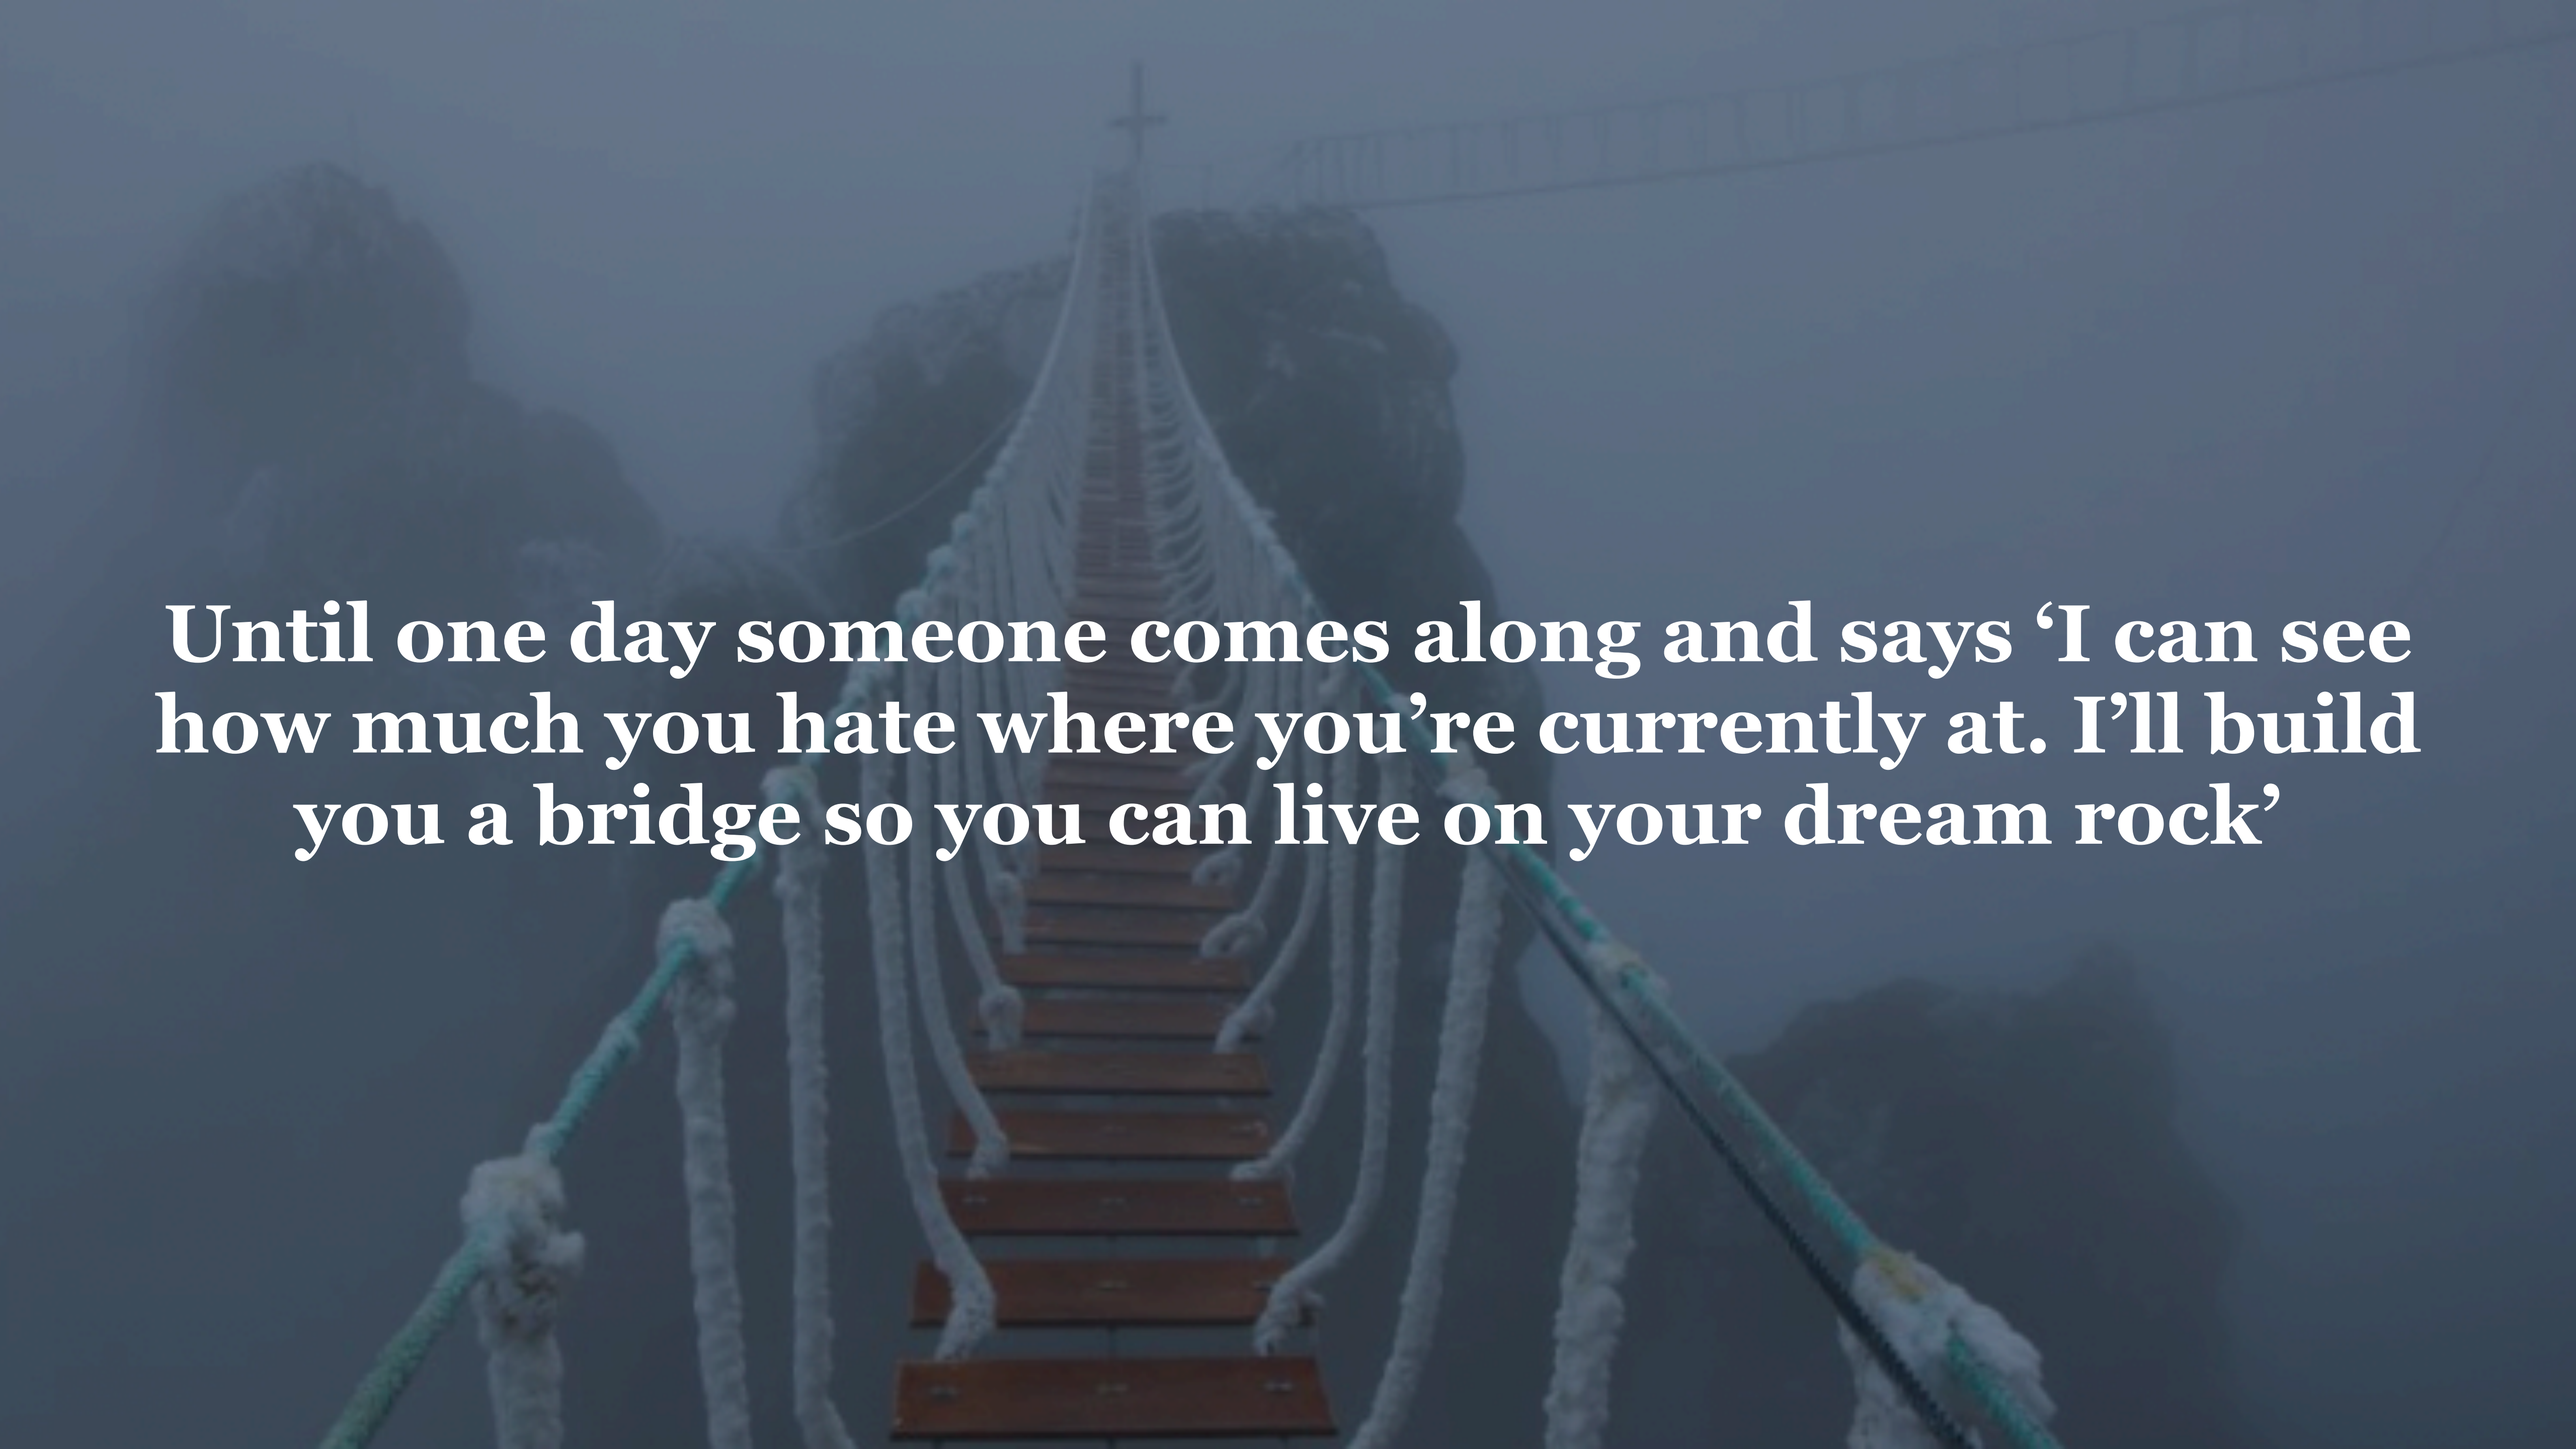

YOU & THE CALL

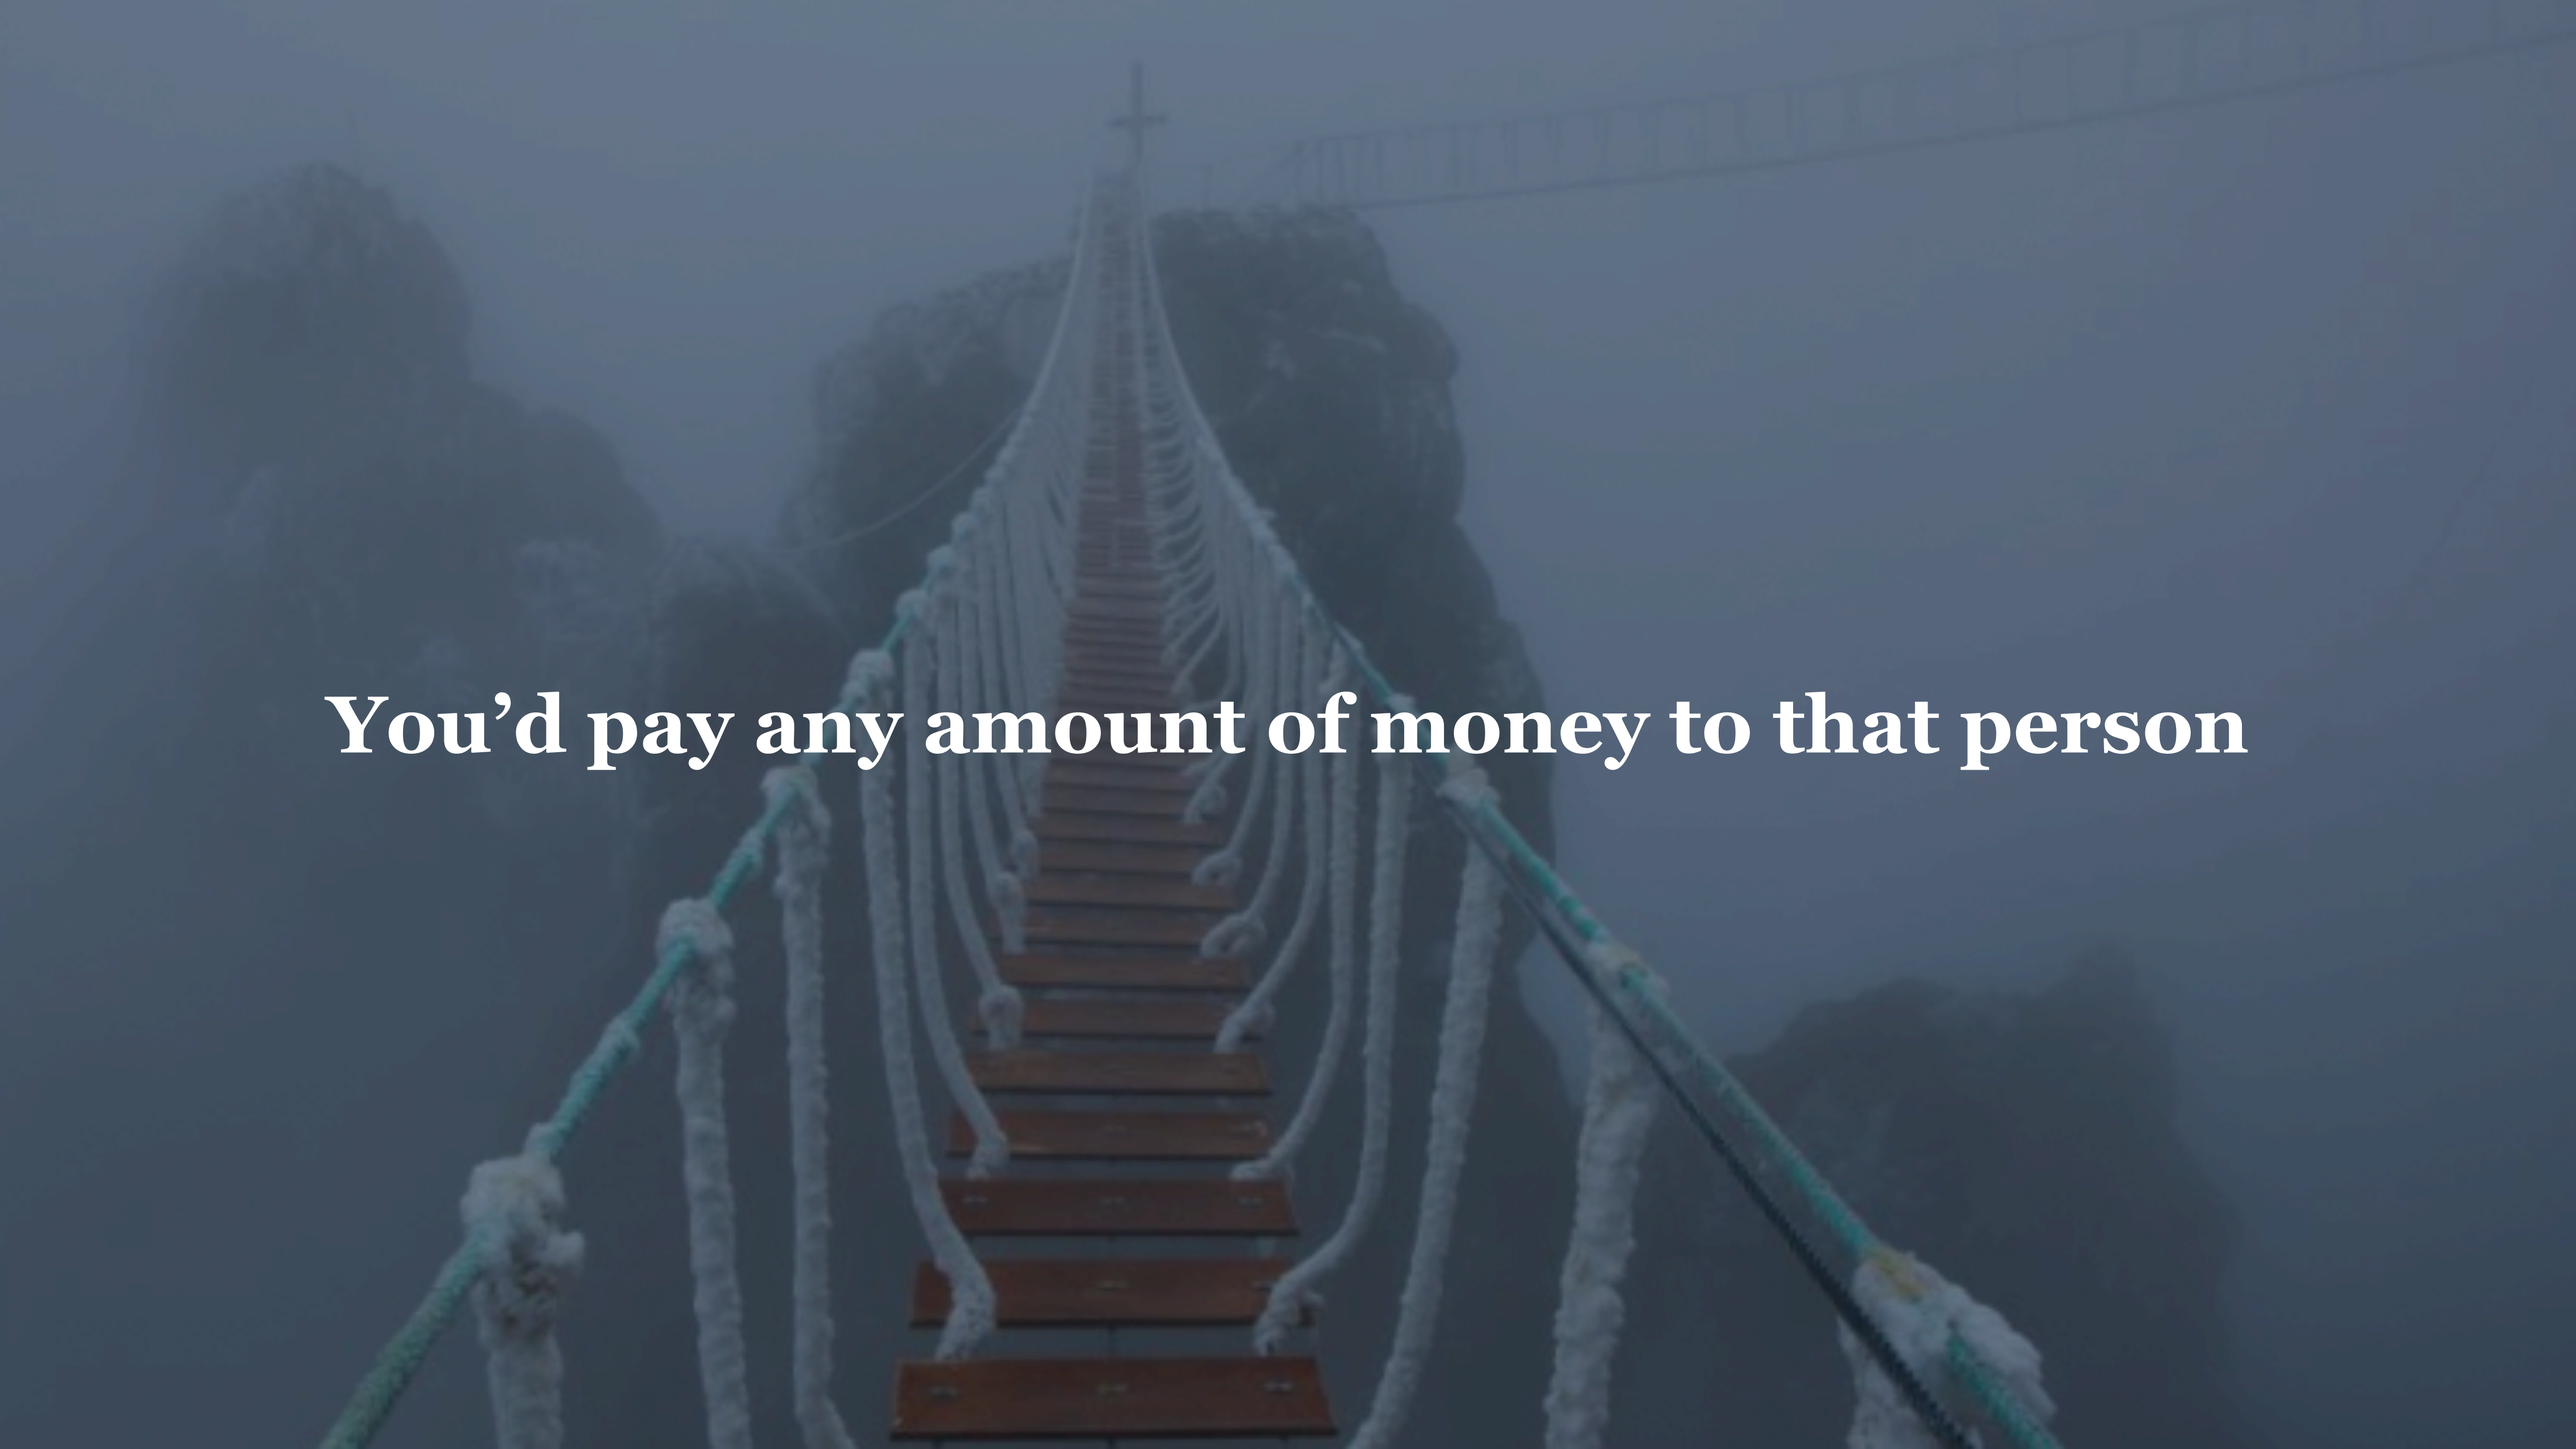

I
A

Imagine being stuck on a tall rock. You hate every minute of it & it’s a painful, uncomfortable place to live

1 mile into the distance is your dream rock. It’s comfortable, has better views, water, food, etc

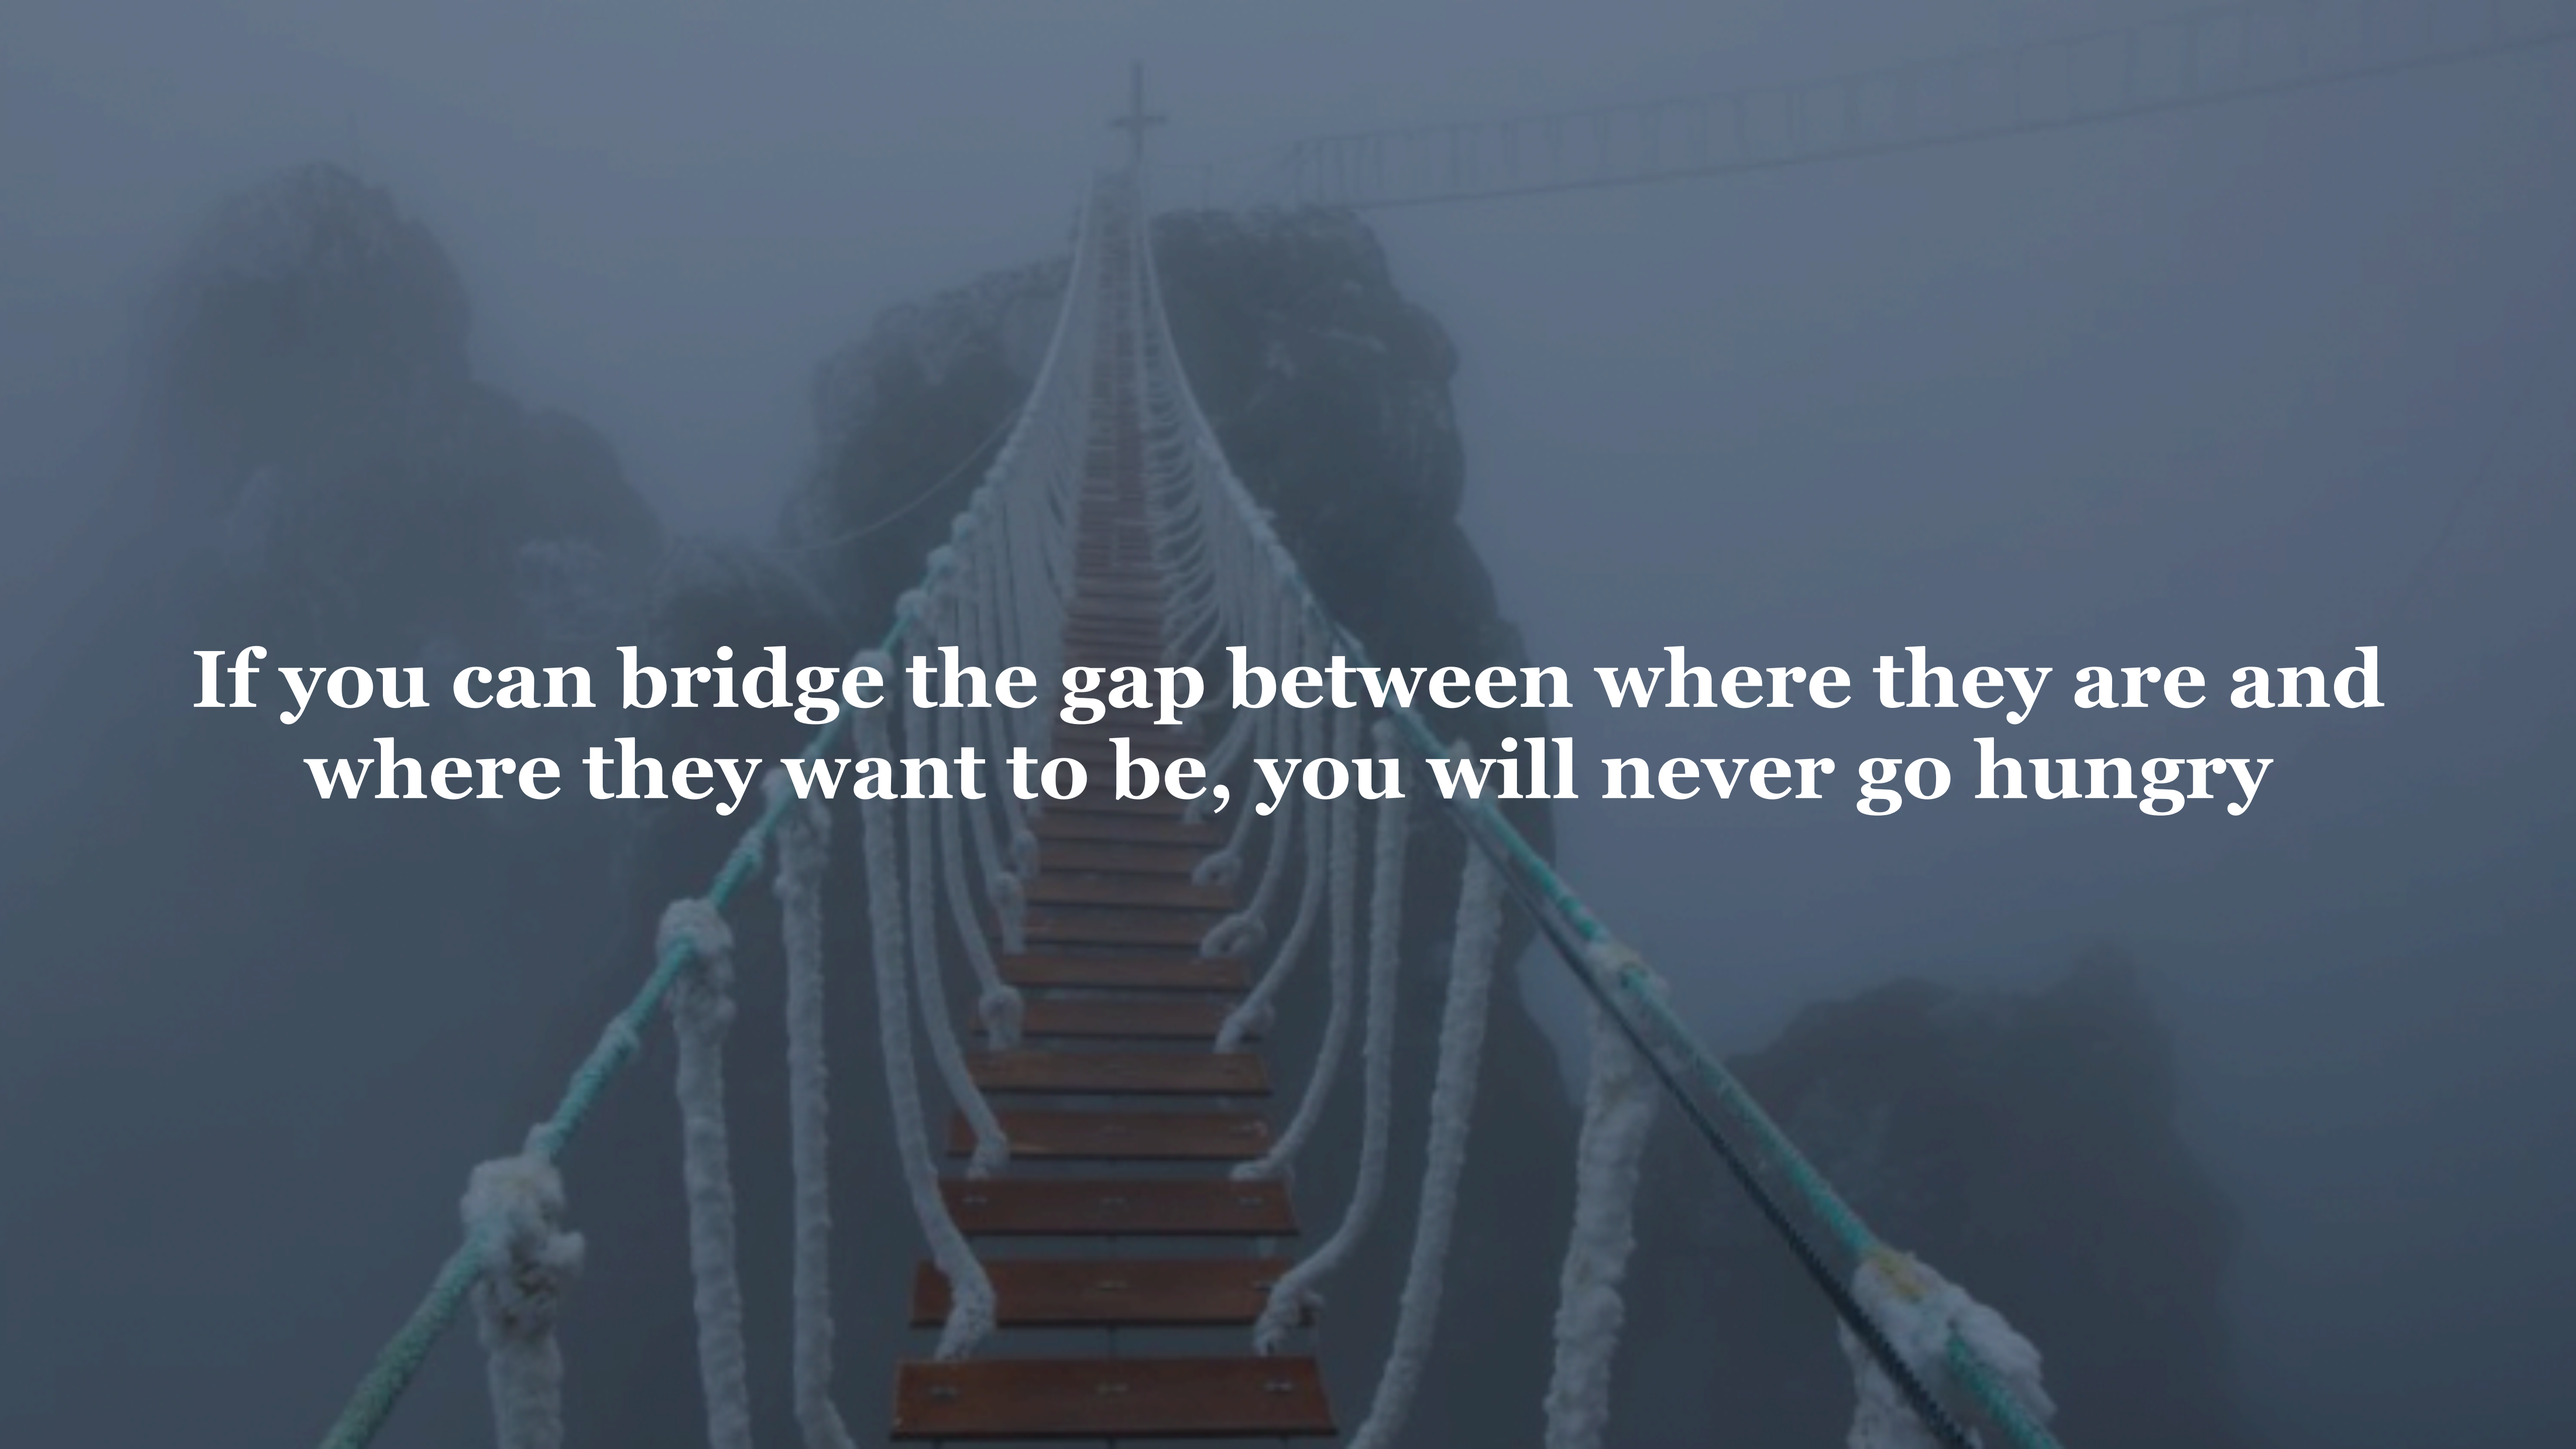

But you can’t get there on your own

Until one day someone comes along and says ‘I can see how much you hate where you’re currently at. I’ll build you a bridge so you can live on your dream rock’

You’d pay any amount of money to that person

Selling paid traffic or marketing services to a business owner is no different

If you can bridge the gap between where they are and where they want to be, you will never go hungry

YOU, YOUR OFFER AND YOUR SERVICE
Where they are
Where they want to be

I
A

This truly is the founding principle of sales

It’s just establishing that there is a gap between where the prospect is and where they want to be, then positioning our service as the bridge they can use to traverse that gap

I
A

If you remember one thing from this sales training, make sure it’s this...

Masterful salesmen create separation

Masterful salespeople create separation

The best and most effective salespeople on this planet are those who focus on clearly defining where their prospect currently is, then where their prospect wants to be. After doing this, and having clearly separated these two situations, they then simply position themselves and their product as the bridge the prospect can use to cross this gap and achieve their dreams.

In simple terms: masterful salespeople don’t sell products or services. They sell futures.

I
A

They sell the ends, not the means

I
A

They sell the desired situation, the emotions that come with it and the feeling of achieving a goal and no longer being in pain

I
A

Common Misconceptions & Myth Busting

Chances are you may have a few faulty beliefs about sales

I
A

If you have these beliefs and try to sell with them, you'll experience nothing but havoc and pain

I
A

Let’s bust them now

Common Misconceptions & Myth Busting

- Great salespeople are just 'born with it' - false, great salespeople have just done a lot of calls.
- You have to have the right personality to be good at sales - false, I'm an introvert by nature and I run rings around extraverted salespeople.
- Great salespeople are powerful & high energy - false, it's better to sell calmly, with silence, grace and sophistication.
- Followup is the key to making sales happen - false, followup is for people who can't close.
- Sales is a lengthy process - false, it's entirely possible to close people on one 45 minute phone call if you do it properly.

I
A

Common Misconceptions & Myth Busting

- Business owners don't like being sold to - false, business owners admire great salespeople and have no qualms giving them large sums of money to fix their problems.

- Sales is about adding value - false, we want our prospects to realise we are experts, but we don't want to solve their problems on the call.

- You should close as many people as possible - false, we should only seek to close those we can actually help. Once we find someone like that, we should be ruthless in our pursuit of the close.

- Sales is only for confident men in suits - false, I've seen wildly successful female salespeople, I've seen introverts, anxious people, shy people, and teenagers close high ticket deals. I've closed loads of clients wearing a dressing gown and slippers while laying on a big beanbag.

I
A

Your Moral Obligation In Sales

As a salesperson, you have a duty

That duty is to only help people you can truly help

I
A

If you think you can’t help someone, or can’t improve on their current situation, don’t tell them you can

I
A

If you do find someone you can help, you should be ruthless in your pursuit of the close

I
A

If you are genuinely convinced you can help someone achieve their dreams, do not give up on getting them onboard

I
A

Your Moral Obligation In Sales

- Sales is about helping people - let go of any attachment you have to your conversion rates, commissions and pay-checks. Put all of your attention and attachment onto genuinely helping people and all the good stuff will come naturally. Your conversion rate is a byproduct of how much you care about the prospect. You should derive all of your sales satisfaction from your ability to help people out and take responsibility for their situation. Do this with sincerity and you will not lose.

I
A

Your Moral Obligation In Sales

- Sales is about helping people - let go of any attachment you have to your conversion rates, commissions and pay-checks. Put all of your attention and attachment onto genuinely helping people and all the good stuff will come naturally. Your conversion rate is a byproduct of how much you care about the prospect. You should derive all of your sales satisfaction from your ability to help people out and take responsibility for their situation. Do this with sincerity and you will not lose.

- Keep this in check - remain ruthless, charge a solid price and don't waver on your offer or start making exceptions. We are selling for the 'fit', so if the prospect needs our help but doesn't fit our offer or model of doing so, they'll have to find someone else.

Your Moral Obligation In Sales

- Sales is about helping people - let go of any attachment you have to your conversion rates, commissions and pay-checks. Put all of your attention and attachment onto genuinely helping people and all the good stuff will come naturally. Your conversion rate is a byproduct of how much you care about the prospect. You should derive all of your sales satisfaction from your ability to help people out and take responsibility for their situation. Do this with sincerity and you will not lose.

- Keep this in check - remain ruthless, charge a solid price and don't waver on your offer or start making exceptions. We are selling for the 'fit', so if the prospect needs our help but doesn't fit our offer or model of doing so, they'll have to find someone else.

- Diagnose, before the close - when entering a sales call, forget all about the close. Don't even think about it til later. Your mission for the first part of the call is to just clearly diagnose the prospect to see if you can help them. Never, ever forget this. It actually makes sales calls so much easier as the prospect will forget you're selling to them and will realise you genuinely have their best interests at heart.

I
A

How We Structure Our Sales Calls

How we structure our sales calls (5 steps)

I
A

How we structure our sales calls (5 steps)

Line of questioning

I
A

How we structure our sales calls (5 steps)

Line of questioning

Pitch

I
A

How we structure our sales calls (5 steps)

Line of questioning

Pitch

Answering their questions

I
A

How we structure our sales calls (5 steps)

Line of questioning

Pitch

Answering their questions

Conquering objections

I
A

How we structure our sales calls (5 steps)

Line of questioning

Pitch

Answering their questions

Conquering objections

Closing

I
A

Calls typically run for 45-60 minutes

I
A

We are aiming for a one call close when conducting them

I
A

The 1 Call Rule

Generally speaking, we want to get the prospect closed on one call

I
A

I’m not going to explore this topic in too much depth now

I
A

I just want you to know it’s entirely possible to close high ticket consulting & marketing retainer deals on one call

I
A

No more bullshit ‘proposals’

I
A

Important Things To Remember

Important things to remember

- Mastery takes a lifetime - you can consume this training module in a few hours, but true mastery will take a lifetime of practise and memorisation.

- My first sales calls were hilariously cringey - I've done over 1,000 sales calls at this point, and the only reason I get the results I do is because I stuck it out and didn't stop doing them.

- This module gives you everything - all you will need to sell like a hero can be found in this module. After that, all it takes is practice.

- Continue to revisit this training - I still go back to the core sales lessons I've learned once per week. The best students in this Program are those who constantly revisit this module and the training it provides. People need to be reminded more than they need to be taught, remember this (pun intended!).

I
A

Important things to remember

- Record your calls - to get really good, record your calls and listen back to them to optimise and improve your script and process. The script we've provided in this module is just the result of thousands of calls, testing and improvement.

- Pair up with others - use the Facebook group to find fellow agency owners who you can train with & partner up with them so you can start to get some role play. Do not use this as an excuse to put off real sales calls!

- You are malleable - if you think you're bad at sales, just answer this - how many sales calls have you done? The only reason you're bad at sales is because you haven;'t done any sales calls, and the only reason you haven't done any sales calls is because you think you're bad at sales. Break this belief and sit back and watch the wonderful transformation you will make!

I
A

Let’s get down to business.