Recap of Sales Bedrock

Recap of Sales Bedrock

- Pain: The primary reason anyone buys anything is to alleviate or get out of a painful situation. We must create pain in order to motivate the prospect to buy. We can justify this by being honest and having their best interests at heart.

- Separation & Bridging: Masterful salespeople create separation. Then they position themselves as the bridge the prospect can use to traverse the terrifying gap between where they are and where they want to be.

- Misconceptions & Myths: Most people have a lot of faulty or wrong beliefs about sales and this harms their ability to close clients. Make sure you aren't one of them.

I

Recap of Sales Bedrock

- Moral Obligations: As a salesperson, you have a professional duty to help your prospect and you are responsible for their success if you can help them. You are responsible for their decision and the outcome of the call depends on you being sincere and honest with the prospect. By telling the truth, the best outcome is impossible to prevent.

- Call Structure: We structure our calls in a orderly, step by step manner. We don't waver from this structure. We start with questions, then we pitch, then we answer the prospects questions, then we close and handle objections.

- 1 Call Rule: It's entirely possible to close people on one 45 - 60 minute phone call. We don't want prospects lingering in the maybe zone. Fence sitting is within no one's best interest.

- Revisit: You need to be reminded more than you need to be taught. You can learn this stuff over the course of a few hours, but you must continually come back to it until it's sewn into the very fibre of your existence.

Using This Process Ethically

Using this process ethically

- This sales training will teach you how to position yourself and your service as the bridge to someone achieving their greatest desires in life.

- It is so powerful that you are literally going to be able to convince anyone to do anything.

- Use it ethically. Use it with honesty, fairness and a solid moral code. Just because you can convert someone, doesn't mean you should.

Our A-Z Sales Process

Before the call preparation

Before the call preparation

5-10 minutes before the call starts, be sure that you do the following...

1. 5 minutes before the call, send your prospect a zoom link. Be ready with their number, prepared to dial the exact moment the clock hits the the time you're due to call.

2. Release any emotions and judgements you may have coming into the call. Clear your mind and enter a tranquil state.

3. Stop focusing on closing, focus on diagnosing. Remember, you are like a doctor, diagnosing an issue before prescribing a solution.

4. Remove ALL distractions. Turn off all notifications, close tabs, close your email, turn calendar reminders off, it should just be you, the phone & a notepad.

Before the call preparation

5. Have a clean sheet of paper and a pen on your desk in front of you to write notes.

6. If the prospect filled out a survey, have their answers in front of you.

7. Make sure you're recording the call / are ready to hit the record button.

8. Use headphones so you can talk with your hands.

9. Make sure your environment is quiet and you will have no distractions (e.g. tell your room mates to shut up, make sure you've been to the toilet, etc!)

Section 1- Micro Rapport

Section 1: Micro Rapport

Hey Claire, Charlie Morgan here.

How are you today?

Have you had a good week?

Great, well if you're ready we can jump in and get started?

Section 2 - Agenda & Alpha Frame

Section 2: Agenda & Alpha Frame

OK, so what we'll do here is I'll start off by asking you some questions about your business, your goals and that application you sent through. Then, if it sounds like we're a good fit, I'll explain our Program and how that works. Then at the end you can decide if you want to be part of it or not.

Them: OK, sounds good

Section 3 - Establish Primary Motive

Section 3 - Establish Primary Motive

OK, let's get started.

So Claire, can you tell me what motivated you to put this time aside and take this call with me today?

Sometimes this question will reveal the prospects motivation/desire which is what we're looking to root out and leverage. If you get this first try, awesome. If not, use these questions to dig deeper.

When you say ___, what do you mean exactly?

Could you explain that in a little more depth?

Why do you think this problem exists?

Have you tried to already fix this? If so, what have you tried?

How long has this problem existed for?

Section 4 - Understand where they’re at

Section 4 - Understand where they’re at

OK, so what do you sell with this business?

OK, and how do you structure your pricing? What prices do you charge?

OK, out of all of your (products/services?), what would you want to sell the most of?

OK, what does your ideal or dream customer look like?

OK, and what are the key selling points about your business?

OK, and what main problem are you solving for your customers?

OK, what’s the sales process that takes someone from a stranger to a paying customer with you?

I

Section 5 - Indirectly cause pain

Section 5 - Indirectly cause pain

OK, how are you currently getting customers?

OK, do you know how much it costs you to get a new customer?

OK, do you have a system or process in place to get customers on demand?

OK, are you comfortable with how it's going on this growth side of the business?

 OK, how much money are you making per month with this business at the moment?

 You must get a specific monthly revenue figure before proceeding. Do not proceed with the call until you have this. Getting this number is imperative to closing the sale. It helps the prospect associate you & your offer with their income.*

Section 6 - Define their goal & future pace it

Section 6 - Define their goal & future pace it

OK Claire, what is the 12 month goal for this business?

OK, and how much money do you want to be making per month with this business, 12 months from now?

You must get a specific dollar per month figure before moving forward. If they are a bit scattered and don't have a goal, spend some time defining it with them (just keep asking them questions, they need to be the one setting the goal or it won't be 'theirs' to achieve).

Section 6 - Define their goal & future pace it

OK, and what is your motivation for getting this business to $XX per month?

OK, how would the business change if you got it to $XX per month?

OK, and how would getting to $XX have an impact on other areas of your life?

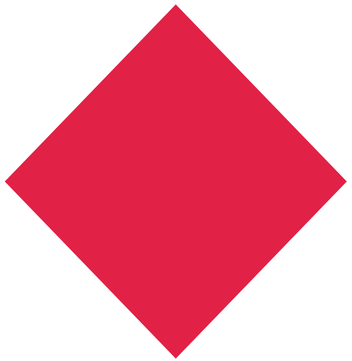

Your job here is to support them with their vision. Help them flesh out their goal and really make them see what's possible and get them to picture what it would be like if they were achieving their goal. Future pace their goals, dreams and desires. I f they are aiming too low, ask some questions like...

Do you think going beyond that is possible?

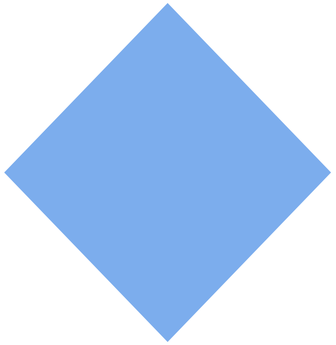

Most people answer these question with their current problem in mind, so ask "If you really did crack the marketing and solve this problem, what do you think would be possible?"

I

Section 7 - Prospect admits defeat

OK Claire, so you're currently making $XX/month and you want to get to $XX/month. Tell me, what's stopping you from doing this on your own?

The prospect should respond with 1 of 3 'defeat statements' before you move forward...

1. She can't do it on her own / doesn't have the knowledge

2. She wants to do it faster / get a shortcut

3. She wants to follow a proven system and be mentored by an expert

Section 8 - Establishing emotion & deep conviction

Section 8 - Establishing emotion & deep conviction

OK Claire, so you're currently making $XX/month. Why not just continue with what you're doing and stay where you are?

OK, and how is struggling with this business having an impact on you?

OK, and when do you want to fix this problem?

OK, I understand you want to fix this now, but what is is your level of commitment to making it happen?

Section 8 - Establishing emotion & deep conviction

These questions will bring up some deep emotions. I've had people cry when answering these questions. Whether it's paying for a relatives medical bills, a phobia of failure, or a ruined marriage, there is always a powerful reason behind why someone wants to change and grow their business.

THINK - We all have deep set desires and reasons for wanting to grow. Mine used to be insecurity, being terrified of 'an average 9-5' and jealousy of successful friends. I would've done anything to satisfy these desires. You must root these reasons out and let the emotions associated with them bubble up from the subconscious. People aren't going to buy because you use a pixel or have the latest copy. They'll buy because they have very solid reasons for growth.

Section 9 - Statement of confidence & permission to explain

Section 9 - Statement of confidence & permission to explain

OK Claire, well I can say with a lot of confidence that definitely help with this.

Would you like me to explain how?

Section 10 - State Your Expertise

Section 10 - State Your Expertise

Well, over at [YOUR COMPANY], our area of expertise is in helping _____ get more _____. We do this by _____.

The ideal ____ for us to work with is typically making between $XX and $XX per month, with a goal of getting that to somewhere between $XX and $XX. And the main problem we help them solve to get there is customer acquisition, so it seems to me like you're a damn good fit for what we do.

Section 10 - State Your Expertise

When you state your expertise & who you help, you want to say it in such a way that the client thinks 'damn, that's my situation' or 'well this seems like a pretty good fit'. It should sound perfect for them.

As we progress through sales training, we will show you how to write this statement out for your niche. You want to write yours out, then practise it until it's smooth, clear and delivered with serious confidence.

If you do this right, the prospect will put 2 and 2 together and believe that you must be the expert to help them.

When you finish stating your expertise, just shut up*.*

Now something awesome happens

The power dynamics in the conversation completely flip

When you state what you are an expert at and shut up, the prospect has to ask you how it works and how they can work with you

This flips the power and they are now the needy one, pulling information from you, you now how the cards

Section 11 - Vaguely pitch your offer

If you do section 10 correctly, your prospect will now ask what you have to offer or ‘how do you do that’

When they ask you need to pitch what you have in a clear way that does NOT solve their problems.

Section 11 - Vaguely pitch your offer

This is when you pitch what you do and how it works. This MUST be vague and it MUST be HIGH LEVEL speech. DO NOT talk about the features, processes or anything like that. PITCH THE ENDS, NOT THE MEANS. If you sell features, you'll trigger 'feature focus' in your prospects brain, which is not what you want to do. You must keep them focused on the OUTCOME, not the means of achieving it.

You must write your own script. Write it out, perfect it, practise it and get the delivery perfect.

Section 11 - Vaguely pitch your offer

After you've said this piece, it's vital that you SHUT UP.

Next, your prospect will start asking you questions about how your system works. They will continue asking questions until they have a clear understanding of how it works and more importantly, how it will work for them. By letting them ask questions, we are building out their dream offer and covering all the information they need to make a decision. You must let your prospect pull information from you.

You should answer their questions clearly & concisely, then shut up and wait for their next question. When answering do not divert the conversation or tangent. Stay focussed and keep your eye on the prize.

After a while, your prospect will have asked all the questions they have regarding the offer. Then, they will ask you for the Price...

Section 12 - Leveraging incentive based pricing to get the close

Section 12 - Leveraging incentive based pricing

This part comes ONLY WHEN YOUR PROSPECT ASKS FOR IT.

"Well our fee for building and managing this for you is $1,500 per month and there is a setup fee of $2000, but what we've found over the past few years of doing this is that people who make quick decisions always turn out to be the best clients for us and we get them the best results, so for those reasons we have something called incentive based pricing, where if you make a decision to move forward on the call with me today, I'll waive the $2,000 setup fee and it's just $1,500 per month." THEN SHUT UP!

This SILENCE here is the most crucial part of your entire call. You MUST not cave in and you MUST remain silent until the prospect speaks. Sometimes this silence is longer than 1-2 mins.

Section 12 - Leveraging incentive based pricing

We're waiting for them to say they want to move forward, like this:

"What's the next step? | OK, let's do it? | Where do we go from here?"

When they are ready to move forward say:

"Great! Well we can get you started right now if you want?"

(OK well how do we do that... OK how do we do the payment... Words like this....)

Well we can process credit card over the phone if that works for you?

(OK cool.... Or words to this effect)

So is that VISA or MASTERCARD, collect the details and KABOOM! CLOSED!

That’s how we close clients

Now let’s talk about what we will NOT accept

When done correctly, this sales process and script will trigger perfect clarity in the prospects mind and they will make a decision to work with you

But more often than not, prospects will try to take home the ‘option’ to work with you and will try to avoid making an immediate decision

Why would someone not buy from us after all of that?

Because they weigh up their options and decide that they're fine with their current situation.

"Retreating to fine"

A

Don’t let people ‘retreat to fine’, show them the gravity of their situation and the seriousness of it until they can’t retreat to it anymore

What we will NOT accept

What we will NOT accept

Anything that is not a direct YES or a direct NO. This decision must be black and white, you should expect the prospect to make the decision there and then and not leave it in a grey area.

Examples:

“Can we chat next week, I need to think about it”

“Right, well I need to run this by my business partner”

“Can you send me a proposal via email please?

no yes = no

A

If a yes isn’t present, the answer is no

Maybe doesn’t cut it. Maybe means no to us.

no yes = no

If your prospect is serious about working with you, they're not going to turn down a big discount just to think about it. Clients that make quick decisions genuinely are the best kind of clients and the ones we always have the most fun working with. You don't want fence sitters.

You must create a reason for the prospect to buy there and then on the call, otherwise the chances of them closing are super slim. Never let a single call in the maybe zone.

If your prospect says they want to think about it, tell them that a maybe is a no to you and that if they want to come onboard at a later date, it will be at the full price with the full setup fee. Truth be told, if they don't buy now, they never will.
