

Conquering Objections | Part 2 | Rebuttals

Here’s what we’re going to cover

- Recap of Foundations
- How To Conquer Objections?
- The Rebuttal Vault
- Examples of Objection Conquering
- Building your Rebuttal Vault
- Conquering the Price Objection
- What to do if you can’t overcome an objection

I
A

Recap: Foundations

Recap: Foundations

- Where the sale truly begins: objections separate good salespeople from great salespeople.
- The Objection Epiphany: Fear rules most agency owners' and they don't handle objections because of this.
- Erasmian Philosophy: Prevention beats cure, the best objection is no objection at all
- Befriending Objections: Learn to love objections - they are opportunities to raise confidence
- Breaking Frames: Don't enter objections in a negative frame

I
A

Recap: Foundations

- Radical Empathy: Seek to truly understand the prospect
- Confidence Looping: Loop each objection back to them getting their outcome with confidence
- Belief Based Objections: Accept that you may have to shatter people's beliefs to get them closed
- Smokescreen Objections: Most objections are smokescreens of doubt
- Action Thresholds: Everyone has an 'action threshold', an emotional pinpoint at which they'll buy
- Preventing the Retreat: The best weapon you have to overcome their objection is their current situation

If you conduct the call properly, set by step, question by question, using all the techniques and 'weapons' we've given you, objections will be a LOT easier to overcome.

I
A

How to conquer objections

It’s very simple: just don’t give your prospect a reason to say no

I
A

Instead of breaking your back trying to get a yes, just focus on removing all the reasons they might so no

I
A

Stay on the call for as long as it takes to get the close and stay ruthless in your pursuit of the close

I
A

The rebuttal vault

Building your rebuttal vault

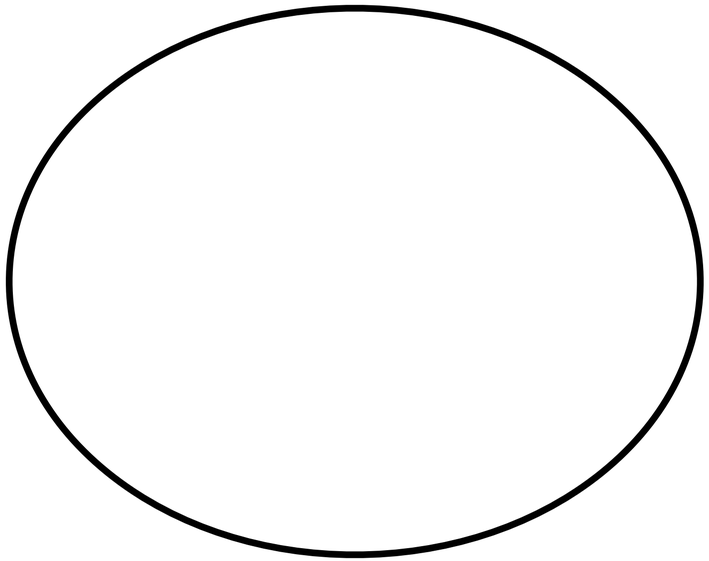

Overcoming the price objection

What to do if you can’t overcome an objection

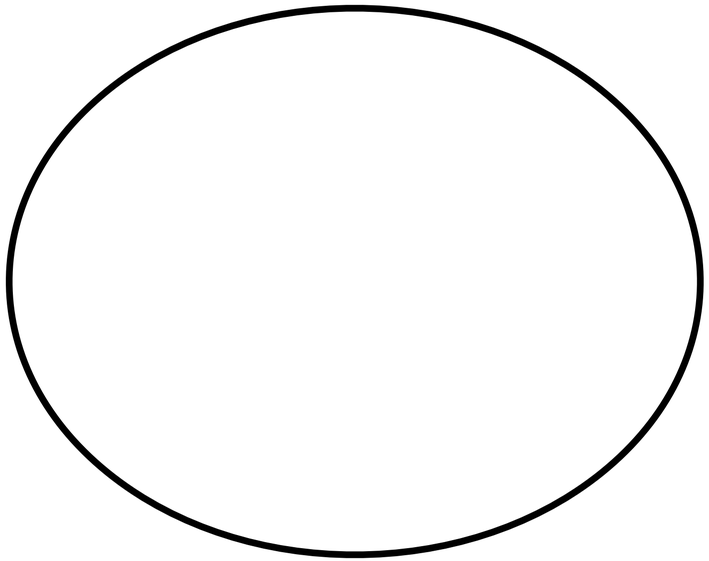

Can’t overcome an objection?

- Do you best to conquer their objections and try your best to not give in.
- Understand that if your prospect doesn’t buy on the call, the chances of them closing on a followup are extremely slim. Looking back over all the calls I’ve done, rarely did a followup convert. This is why you must adopt a strict philosophy and stick to your guns. If they try to walk all over you and get out of the inventive based pricing, just say no.
- When you scale to 30+ calls per week, you must realise that followups cost you more money to do than fresh ones. So you should be happy cutting a few grand off your price if it means you get the opportunity to close a new client. Let me explain….

Your availability for calls

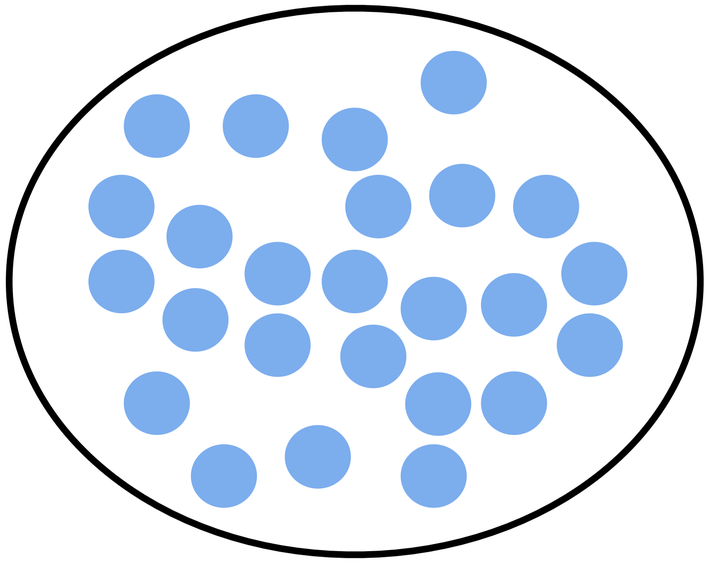

I
A

Your availability for calls

New calls

I
A

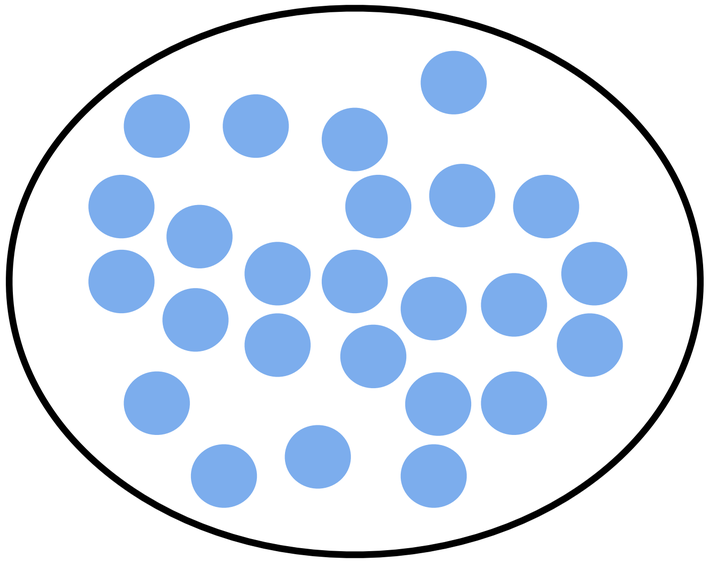

Your availability for calls

New calls

I
A

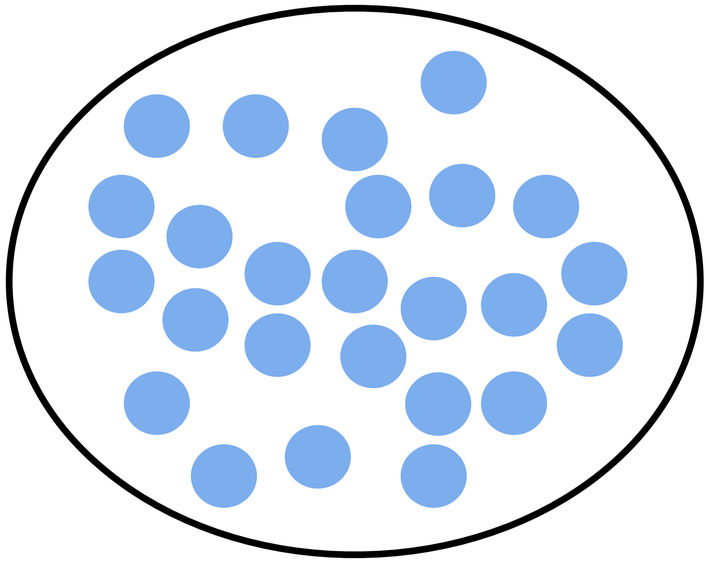

Your availability for calls

25 new calls

I
A

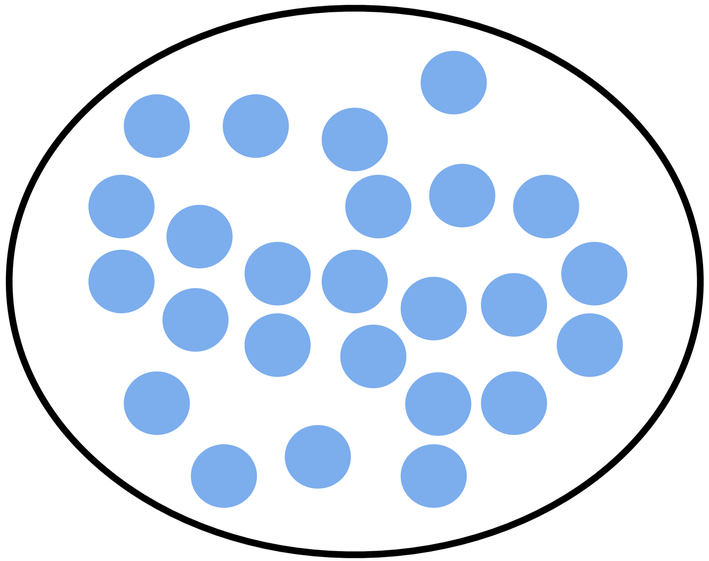

Your availability for calls

What happens
If they all
become followups
for next week?

I
A

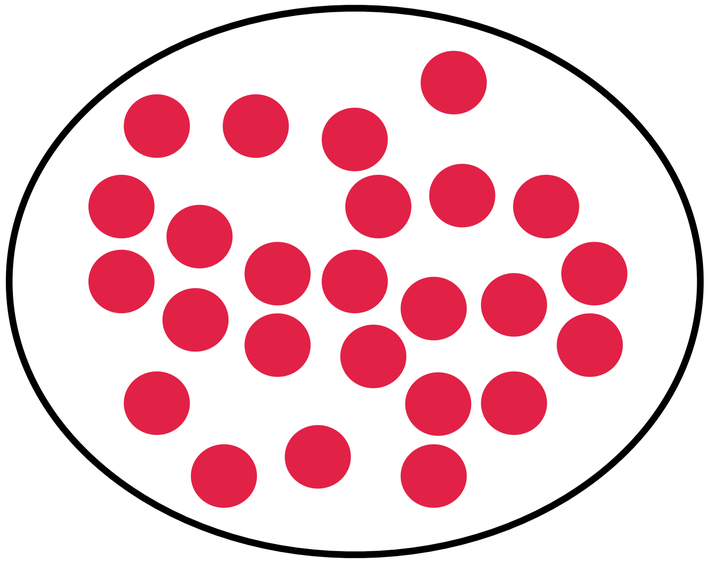

Your availability for calls

Followup call

I
A

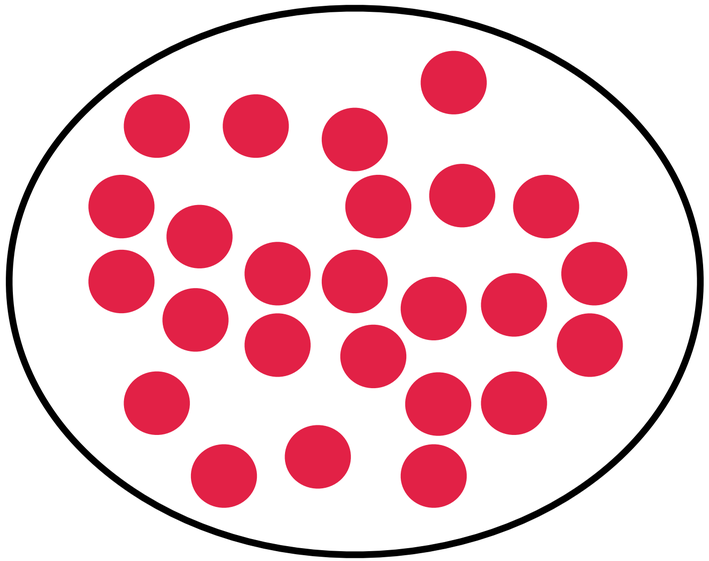

Your availability for calls

Followup call

I
A

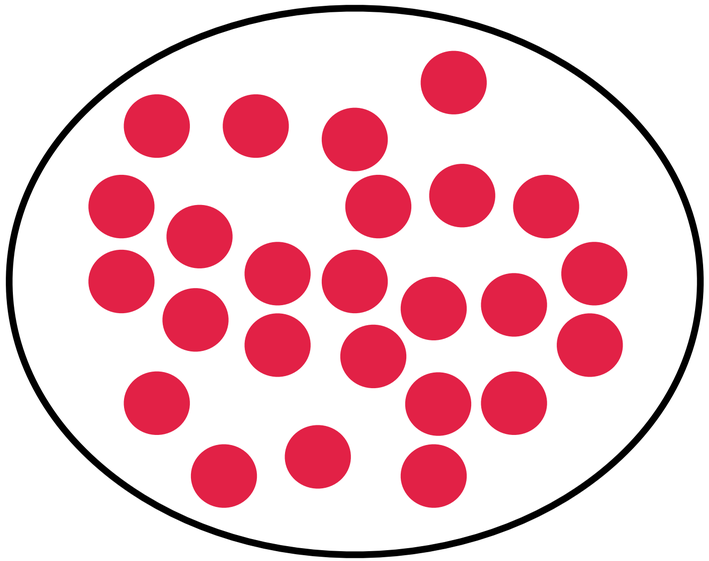

Your availability for calls

Followup call

No room for fresh calls since all you have is followups

I
A

Your availability for calls

Followup call

This is why we want a clear cut decision on the call. It costs us more to do a followup call than it does to leverage a financial incentive for them to buy now.

I
A

Can’t overcome an objection?

- Remember our philosophy that no yes = no. Fence sitting simply will not do and we will not allow the prospect to sit in the maybe zone. A no is a fine, a maybe we will not accept.

- However, here’s how to deal with someone who is adamant they won’t decide now.

1) Get a refundable deposit paid so that they have given some commitment, tell them it’s refundable if they change their mind by a certain date… (get a specific date/time for a decision)

2) If they want to speak with a partner, get a card on file for a deposit to show commitment, then schedule a followup call with them and their partner. Make it clear they they can ONLY get that refund on the call and that if they want to get the deposit refunded it HAS to be on that followup call, not via email. When you speak with their partner, just simply ask what questions they have and answer the questions and do nothing else.

3) If they want to ‘think about it’. Then you have two options. 1) If you don’t have many calls, schedule a followup with them for an exact time/date. Or 2) add them on Facebook / connect with them on LinkedIn. Send them a payment link and say they have 24 hours to fill it out to come onboard at the incentive based price.

I
A

Can’t overcome an objection?

- If someone doesn’t trust you enough to pay a refundable deposit, chances are they are never going to trust you to pay the full amount. If so, don’t be afraid to tell them then following…

“Well John, I’m glad we spoke here, but to me a maybe it a no. Fence sitting doesn’t do either of us any good, so let’s put this matter to bed. Are you in or out?”.

If they say out, say that’s fine and if they want to come onboard in the future it will be at the full price. Be respectful.